Excellence in Teaching

Founders' Day

Annual Report of Donors

WINTER 1999 • VOL. 70, No. 2

A Message from the President

*A*s I write this, the brilliant colors of another Virginia autumn have almost faded, and students are buckling down to work on final term papers and studying for exams. The fall semester has been exceedingly full; a number of important events have engaged our students. We started the year with a visit from Julian Bond, chairman of the NAACP and longtime civil rights activist. At Founders' Day, we honored our Distinguished Alumna, Katharine Milton, and in turn heard her give a fascinating talk about her research in the Amazonian rain forest. Poet Maya Angelou came early in November; more than 1,300 people poured onto the campus to hear her speak. We relived the Civil War through Mary Boykin Chesnut's eyes in a compelling one-woman play. Each of our fall athletic teams celebrated a Vixen Spirit Day that was great fun—complete with popcorn, pompons, the “president's party” and lots of students cheering on their teams.

In my judgment, the vitality evident on the playing fields and in Babcock Auditorium reflects the vitality in our classrooms. In this issue of your Alumnae Magazine (beginning on p.2), we focus on a topic that should be of utmost importance to you: excellence in teaching. Since my first trip to Sweet Briar, I have been impressed with the quality and achievement of this faculty. From my earliest conversations with them, they have wanted to talk about their teaching: what happens in their classrooms, new courses they would like to teach, their work with individual students, the ideas they have developed with fellow faculty members. I have been intrigued with the innovative ways they are incorporating the best technology and latest research into the classroom.

Our new General Education Program is the result of these efforts, interweaving the best practices in liberal arts education into the fabric of Sweet Briar. First-year students have settled into the rhythm of college life and, for the first time, begun their academic careers with one of 16 First-Year Seminars, interdisciplinary courses that focus both on an interesting and multifaceted topic that makes students think, and also on developing skills in written and oral communication and, in several cases, in quantitative reasoning. These seminars have added an interesting new dimension to teaching first-year students. Faculty are experimenting with teaching across disciplines, and many are learning ways to teach writing and oral presentation in disciplines that have not traditionally focused on these skills. As for students, the chance to dive right into an intellectually demanding college seminar is both exciting and challenging. Lots of first-year students have told me they can't believe how much reading they have to do! When I hear comments like that, I'm delighted: what better statement could we make about what will be expected of them, and the intellectual values of this college?

Sweet Briar's curriculum is evolving as fast as the world is changing; you will read about a number of new offerings in addition to the General Education Program. A computer science major, building on our success in the sciences and technology, and a new Spanish/business major both will position our students to take their places in the forefront of tomorrow's professionals. A new minor in archaeology, buttressed this summer by the first Sweet Briar Field School in Archaeology, has literally enabled our students to discover the past for themselves. Our faculty is responsive to the educational needs of a whole new generation of students, and I am delighted at the level of interdepartmental brainstorming and collaboration that allows this to happen here. I hope this issue of the Alumnae Magazine is one you will share with a prospective student. It talks about the very lifeblood of the College.

EXCELLENCE IN TEACHING

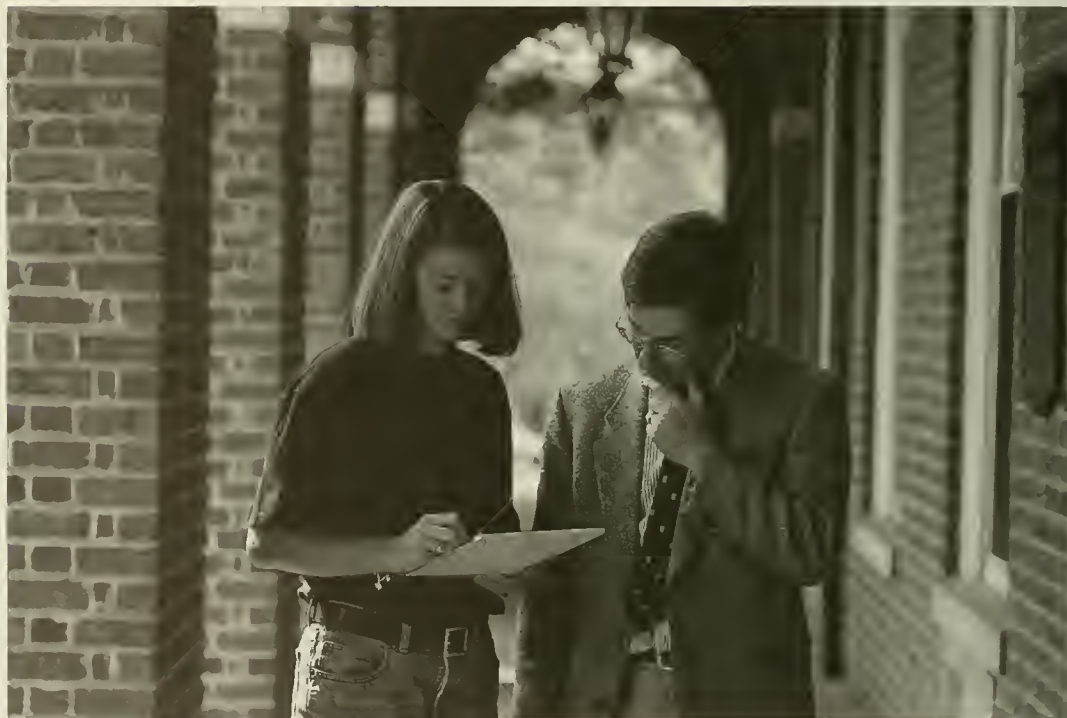

by Mary Molyneux Abrams '86

In May 1998, after two and a half years of intense research and debate, the Sweet Briar faculty passed an all-encompassing General Education Program. This new program—the first major overhaul of the curriculum in several decades—envisions a Sweet Briar education as a seamless process, beginning with Orientation and continuing through the senior year. All students will complete a set of requirements that will:

- ensure the development of strong communication and quantitative reasoning skills,
- help students clarify the rationale for a strong liberal arts background,
- provide a pattern for the acquisition of knowledge both in terms of breadth (understanding broad areas of knowledge) and depth (the completion of a major),
- engage in purposeful experiences that will enhance their formal learning,
- encourage students to routinely assess their progress, review their decisions, and align their undergraduate preparation with future academic, career, and life goals.

If the points listed above look familiar, it is because Sweet Briar's mission to provide the best possible liberal arts education for young women has not changed. What is new is the way these objectives are expressed and implemented across the curriculum.

Starting this year, faculty throughout the disciplines are emphasizing writing, oral communication, and quantitative reasoning skills at every level. The Class of 2002 and every class to follow will be required to take skill-intensive courses, not only as first-year students, but on into their majors.

Karl Tamburr

Dr. Alix Ingber, associate dean of academic affairs and professor of Spanish, describes the new skills initiative as being “more intentional.” While communication and analytical skills have always been important components of a Sweet Briar education, a consistent approach was not guaranteed under the old requirements.

On a visit back to campus for Alumnae Council, Cecilia A. Moore '88, assistant professor of religious studies at the University of Dayton, praised the new emphasis on skills. Though she felt confident in her abilities through graduate school and beyond, she believes the College is right to update preparation in this area. “Technology speeds the delivery of information, but it does not change the need for thoughtful composition,” says Cecilia. “If anything, the use of computers exposes deficiencies more quickly. If you don't have solid writing, reasoning, and presentation skills, your employers are going to uncover those weaknesses faster than they would have just 10 years ago. On the flip side, if you're a capable Sweet Briar graduate, your strengths will be recognized and swiftly rewarded.”

In addition to skills, the new curriculum acknowledges the value of experiences that complement or amplify academic work. Self-assessment, independent research, physical activity, and completing a major are the main components of a requirement that provides needed time for reflection while promoting active, hands-on learning. By identifying and formalizing the many ways students participate in learning both inside and outside the classroom, Sweet Briar can work effectively to expand opportunities in both areas. The College's new Spanish/business major, summer research program, and “Learning on the Land” orientation are just a few examples of how this initiative is taking shape. (This issue of the Alumnae Magazine covers many others.)

If this were the year 1400, I could honestly say that we have developed something unique. What we really have here is a new version of a Renaissance curriculum—a curriculum that gives you skills in speaking and writing to carry out into public life; that is adaptable to your personal life...

—Karl Tamburr

But of all the curricular transitions occurring this year, the least visible change may be the most intriguing. The old "pink sheet" tucked away inside every student's file has been transformed. Instead of focusing on individual departments, Sweet Briar's distribution requirements now consist of nine knowledge areas. The traditional, inescapable laboratory course in biology, chemistry, or physics is gone. In its place is a neat block of type that reads: "Understanding the world through (a) scientific theory, and (b) scientific experiment and observation." The new wording reflects the College's departure from "cookbook" science to an increasingly successful investigative approach. The other eight knowledge areas follow a similar model.

Margaret Hartman, professor of philosophy, explains the shift away from department-centered requirements saying: "The old 'Chinese menu' is out. Students no longer take a course in the English department; they take a course in literature. This requirement can be filled in a foreign language department, for example, in French or Spanish literature, as well as in English. Distribution requirements are organized around the types of knowledge we want students exposed to during their four years here. As a result, students have a broader range of choices."

No matter where you look, the faculty has exhaustively reexamined every aspect of a Sweet Briar education—revising, integrating, innovating, and ultimately arming young women with the competencies they need to succeed in the decades ahead.

"If this were the year 1400, I could honestly say that we have developed something unique," notes Karl Tamburr, professor of English. "What we really have here is a new version of a Renaissance curriculum—a curriculum that gives you skills in speaking and writing to carry out into public life; that is adaptable to your personal life; that gives you not just the facts, but shows you how areas of knowledge are interconnected. It is a practical education in many ways, but it is also idealistic. It is a legacy that requires you to question your purpose every now and then to make sure your approach is still valid."

These pages cannot possibly cover all of the exciting changes and opportunities rising out of the General Education Program. An outstanding example drawn from one department has an equivalent in another, making it difficult to decide who and what to feature. It is a delightful predicament that supports President Muhlenfeld's description of Sweet Briar as "a dynamic center for learning that continues to change in order to remain relevant."

Self-Assessment

In the swirl of college life, it is easy—sometimes necessary—to focus exclusively on the tasks at hand. Papers, exams, presentations, labs, meetings, lectures, and special events leave little time to reflect on accomplishments or to contemplate long-term goals. This is why Sweet Briar's new General Education Program includes a self-assessment component for students. It's not just a good idea to think about your personal development; it's required.

During Orientation, freshmen write the first of three essays outlining their interests, proficiencies, and educational objectives. They write a similar essay in the middle of their sophomore year as part of selecting their majors. A third and final essay asks seniors to evaluate their Sweet Briar experience in light of their postgraduate goals. These confidential, ungraded essays help students and their advisors devise meaningful, individualized academic programs. This is the most immediate application. Self-assessment essays are useful in dozens of other ways.

Melissa Henning, senior and student government president, has no difficulty grasping the benefit of writing self-assessment essays. She has had to compose several comparable pieces over the course of her Sweet Briar career, most recently as part of her application for a summer fellowship at the Family Research Council in Washington, D.C.

According to Melissa, applications for fellowships, internships, study abroad, and graduate school programs all require personal essays. The same applications also call for recommendations. "Having a self-assessment essay in place means you don't have to begin from scratch when applying to these competitive programs. Even more important, it gives your professors a broader sense of your interests and goals. They can use that information to write stronger letters of recommendation."

Valdrie Walker, the College's vibrant new dean of co-curricular life, is well aware of the needs of students like Melissa Henning. Her vision takes the self-assessment concept a step further. She wants to create a co-curricular "portfolio" that complements each student's academic transcript and essays. Though Melissa will graduate before Dean Walker's idea is implemented, she agrees with the value of such an effort.

"Portfolios will help students be even more deliberate about what they are getting out of their educations," says Melissa. "As it develops over four years, a portfolio might consist of your on-campus work experience and volunteer activities. Your résumé could be added along with letters from internship supervisors or visiting professors. Things like research or writing samples should be included. Instead of scrambling to assemble these items at the last minute, you'll be building them as you go along. You'll leave Sweet Briar with a tangible product you can take away with you. You'll not only leave with a degree, but a portfolio of achievements."

While Melissa Henning outlines the benefits of taking self-assessment a step further, Kathy Pegues, Alumnae Association president, discusses the value of taking it a step back. As Association president, Kathy had access to Sweet Briar's general education proposal. She decided to use the self-assessment portion of the program in her eighth-grade class.

"My students were at a crossroads, graduating from middle school," explains Kathy. "I decided it was the perfect time for a self-assessment essay and assigned it as their final exam. Well, they were so excited; they wanted their essays returned! I'm slowly honoring their request, writing notes on each and mailing them back. Most of the essays displayed the most wonderful writing I've seen, well organized and very thoughtful. So, it looks like I was able to give them the first hint of something Sweet Briar taught me. That is, education is not something that is done to you. It is something you actively participate in to discover your own ability."

First-Year Seminars

Don't be fooled by titles like The Making of a Musical, Must See TV? or Alien Worlds. The 16 first-year seminars offered this fall were created to function as boot camps for the mind, introducing first-year students to the rigors of the new General Education Program.

First-year seminars focus on the skills and intellectual practices promoted at Sweet Briar, leaving the faculty free to select themes and develop content that does not apply toward the completion of a major. Unlike introductory-level courses, these seminars do not have to cover a prescribed range of material. Professors can concentrate on their students' speaking, writing, or quantitative skills—all centered around an engaging topic. Though seminars share a common liberal arts perspective, no two are alike.

Jeff Key, professor of government, returning from several months in Bangladesh, uses his research to inform the Global Problems and Politics seminar. "The area I study, South Asia, is a troubled part of the world," Key explains. "Students in a safe and secure context like Sweet Briar don't have to worry about ethnic strife sweeping across the country, displacing them, and uprooting their lives. But they may someday play a role in solving problems like this. I teach expecting that the next Madeleine Albright is sitting among my students."

As one part of a larger assignment, Professor Key's students engage in formal briefings. Students are required to master information and then package it in concise, useful ways. "They have to present information as though they were reporting to high-level officials on a fact-finding mission. Decision makers don't have the time or the patience for long papers or theoretical issues. They want to know everything you know and they want it fast."

While Professor Key's students are being grilled at the podium, students in Contemporary Environmental Issues are out in the woods searching for "meaningful natural objects." It sounds rather idyllic, until Sang Hwang, assistant professor and director of environmental studies, puts the assignment in context: "Before students can begin deconstructing articles on environmental issues, they have to extract each author's underlying philosophy. Journalists, politicians, activists, and corporations use the environment as a metaphor to express their values in very subtle ways. So, as a preliminary exercise, I have students select a natural object—a pine cone, a leaf, or a weed—and use it as a metaphor to express their personal values.”

Deconstructing Professor Hwang’s seminar, it is clear that he is using Sweet Briar’s picturesque 3,300 acres as a metaphor to express a liberal arts agenda. And many other first-year seminar instructors are using similarly subtle tactics.

Among the educational resources used in Paris through the Ages are travel guides, a TV movie, and several web sites. But, as students soon discover, these materials are used strategically to provide contrast. Angelo Metzidakis, professor of French, also has his students reading journalistic texts, memoirs, diaries, and essays from various periods. “In the process of working on their assignments, students are learning to compare and critique media. They are making decisions about quality, depth, and authenticity from an informed background. Just because something is on the web does not mean it is a sound, scholarly source.”

Perhaps the toughest decision by any group of students occurred in Today’s Ethical Challenges. Unsure of exactly what final requirements to set for the seminar, Margaret Hartman, professor of philosophy, allowed her students to participate in the process. “My seminar attracted 12 students who were strong in both the sciences and the humanities. I did not give them a complete syllabus at the start because I wanted to get a better sense of their backgrounds and capabilities. Well, they all agreed that the end-point would be a 10-page research paper and an oral presentation in which each student defends her thesis.”

Professor Hartman is not alone in the type of feedback she is receiving from students. According to Professor Key, first-year seminars “are supposed to be about setting a base of expectations in knowledge and skills.

However, I think we may also be setting a base of engagement. Many of my students are in class early talking about the issues we’re covering in class. They’re taking ownership of their education. That’s a great way to begin your four years at Sweet Briar.”

Minor Has Major Impact

They found it!

Last summer, a group of students from Sweet Briar and other colleges uncovered Booker T. Washington’s birthplace during an archaeological dig in Franklin County, Virginia.

Working under the direction of Dr. Amber Moncure, visiting assistant professor of anthropology and Sweet Briar Class of 1991, students are conducting an archaeological assessment of the Booker T. Washington National Monument.

“The National Park Service had approached me the previous fall about their need for the assessment,” explains Professor Moncure. “After only several days of digging in 1958, a cabin was excavated and reconstructed on the site. That was the extent of the archaeological research. No one knew for certain if it was Washington’s birthplace, but it served as a model.”

Based on historical documents and oral tradition, Professor Moncure had good reasons for searching elsewhere on the site. Though the most likely location of Washington’s birthplace had been bulldozed during the construction of park facilities, the team took up the challenge. Students covered the suspected area with 18-by-18 inch holes every 25 feet.

Recounting the event, Professor Moncure remains humble. “We got lucky,” she claims. “One of those little holes came down on dark soil mixed with clay. We opened up a bigger set and—voila!—there was the cabin. It was a log cabin and, based on the artifacts inside, it clearly belonged to slaves. The 12-foot square sits where oral history indicated Booker T. Washington was born in 1856.”

The students were enrolled in Sweet Briar’s new Field School In Historical Archaeology, a summer program offering practical fieldwork opportunities. Currently, students conduct digs both on the Sweet Briar campus and at the Booker T. Washington National Monument. During the academic year, Sweet Briar archaeology minors participate in similar activities.

“The one link between all archaeological studies—American, Classical, South American—is the shovel,” says Professor Moncure. “You have to get your hands dirty to understand the process and make sense of it. We are always seeking opportunities to give students the basic experience they need to pursue their own research and interests.”

Compared with the highly-trafficked Booker T. Washington site, the Sweet Briar campus is pristine. This summer, the same students put in approximately 350 test holes around Sweet Briar House and a nearby slave cabin. In the process, they uncovered two small stone foundations that may be additional slave cabins. There is also evidence that blacksmithing occurred surprisingly close to the main house. But the most potentially exciting find was an acre’s worth of crushed brick scattered across what appears to be a work yard for laundering, cooking, and crafts.

In addition to providing archaeology minors with “hands-on” experience, campus excavations coincide with Professor Moncure’s own research on enslaved African Americans. “The history of Sweet Briar is a microcosm of American history and culture. In my research, I’m taking this plantation with its more than 100 slaves and 3,000 acres, and pooling the data with other sites. Working at Booker T. Washington, Poplar Forest, Monticello, and other places in Central Virginia, you begin to get a regional picture of Southern plantation life.”

Having such remarkable resources underfoot accelerates teaching and learning. “There is a material world around us,” says Professor Moncure. “At Sweet Briar you don’t have to spend hours describing it. You can walk out the classroom door and grab hold of it.”

Cleaning Up Your Image: Physics and Computer Science at SBC

As an undergraduate at MIT, Scott Hyman, assistant professor of physics, worked as a “delivery boy,” carrying IBM cards around from lab to lab. “Today,” says Professor Hyman, “computers have evolved to the point where my students can participate directly in projects. I’ve had English majors working with math and physics majors. All students are invited.”

Posted in the hallway outside Professor Hyman’s office are pictures—actually high-resolution radio maps—of spiral galaxies. The pictures are created at Sweet Briar using raw data sent via the internet from the National Radio Astronomy Observatory in New Mexico. “What we do,” explains Professor Hyman, “is take observations from an array of 27 dish antennas spread across the desert and download the information to a Unix workstation here. The data from each antenna has to be crunched and correlated in a certain way to generate a coherent picture.” The project, which is funded in part by the Jeffress Memorial Trust, includes support for summer research assistants.

To help students enhance the quality of astronomical images or any other type of images used in scientific research, Professor Hyman is developing a new physics/computer science course called “Image Processing and Pattern Recognition.” Last summer, Shweta Sharma ’01 received a separate VFIC Minority

Summer Research Fellowship to work with Professor Hyman on a project applying image processing techniques to handwritten characters.

“Shweta added ‘noise’ in the form of blurs and speckles to handwritten digits. Then, applying different automated techniques, she used a computer to improve and classify those images. This type of tool can be used in radio astronomy to ‘clean up’ images of galaxies. Biologists might use the same technology to reduce ‘noise’ in images produced with a scanning electron microscope.”

According to Professor Hyman, human beings take image processing for granted. For example, we recognize the same face with different expressions, from different angles, under various lighting conditions. “Show a computer two mug shots of the same man, one of him scowling and the other of him smiling, and the computer will not make the connection—not unless you provide it with very sophisticated mathematical algorithms. These are the types of challenges we encounter when we try to automate

Theorists can still get away with using pencils and paper. But then they turn around and ask us to prove their theoretical models. —Scott Hyman

'simple' tasks like recognizing and classifying images, freeing ourselves to do more important work."

Professor Hyman's interest in image processing dates back to his post-doctoral year at the National Institutes of Health. There, researchers were working on an artificial neural network (ANN), a computing device that learns through experience. "Based on Pavlovian conditioning experiments with animals, the NIH and its contractors were creating crude models of the mechanisms of learning. My physics background, especially statistical mechanics, was adaptable to the project. There are parallels between systems of neurons leading to high-level cognitive functions and systems of particles leading to macroscopic phenomenon like weather."

Professor Hyman uses computer technology judiciously throughout the curriculum, exposing his students to a wide variety of research tools. "We're always limited by the tools," he says. "Technology is good for science because it allows us to stay on the job, exploring the same questions we were asking 50 years ago: What makes a nucleus work? Why are there galaxies? How do storms form? Theorists can still get away with using pencils and paper. But then they turn around and ask us to prove their theoretical models. Having access to technology at the most fundamental levels brings students into this theoretical/experimental exchange. Instead of learning science second-hand, they discover it for themselves."

Down-To-Earth Experience For Rocket Scientists

Anne Lombardi '01 entered Sweet Briar planning to major in physics. But her summer fellowship at NASA has helped to refine her goals. "What she is saying now is that she's going to be a rocket scientist," says Carlos Calle, professor of physics.

In 1998, Professor Calle was awarded a NASA faculty fellowship for a project titled "Electrostatic Charge and Discharge of Sub-micron Dust Particles in the Simulated Martian Environment." The research is critical to keeping NASA's equipment in good working order on a planet prone to global dust storms.

Anne began assisting Professor Calle with preliminary research during the spring semester of her freshman year. Then, during the summer, she continued to work for 10 weeks at the Kennedy Space Center with funding from both the Florida Space Grant Commission and the Sweet Briar Science Initiative.

"My research involves understanding the dry Martian soil, particularly its electrostatic or magnetic properties," says Professor Calle. "Anne helped me and my collaborators at NASA design and set up experiments from scratch. She participated in our discussions and helped to collect data. After spending several weeks with us, she joined another, adjacent team that needed her assistance."

Anne joined two NASA scientists who were characterizing a type of volcanic ash from Hawaii that serves as a simulant or substitute for Martian soil. The paper she wrote summarizing the research was presented before the entire division at NASA at the end of the summer. "Everybody was there," recalls Professor Calle. "The project has high visibility and people were interested in the results. Anne's presentation provoked an animated discussion, but she fielded questions very well."

Anne was by far the youngest research assistant there. Most of the professors conducting experiments at the Kennedy Space Center come from large universities where graduate students are first in line for summer fellowships. At Sweet Briar, undergraduates—even freshmen like Anne—receive these high-level opportunities.

Because Professor Calle is limited in the number of students he can take to NASA, he is preparing to bring portions of his research to Sweet Briar. “Some of my work requires expensive, large equipment,” he explains. “Other components I can set up here with my students. This is what I’m planning to do spring semester. I’m teaching a research course that will expose majors to some of the ongoing work I’m doing for NASA. It’s exciting and challenging. These are very delicate experiments that require a great deal of care and precision. It’s important experience and, this way, four to five students will be able to participate and share the responsibility.”

From Bombers to Butterflies: Global Positioning Comes to SBC

Before Sweet Briar professors can introduce students to cutting-edge research tools, they have to learn to use the equipment themselves. This is how Linda Fink, associate professor of biology, is spending her sabbatical year. She is bringing a pair of new, complementary technologies to campus: global positioning system (GPS) devices and geographic information system (GIS) mapping software.

GPS is a worldwide network of Defense Department satellites that can pinpoint the latitude, longitude, elevation, speed, and direction of missiles, troops, and ships. Civilian uses range from commercial aviation and public safety applications, to recreational use by weekend boaters and hikers. Incorporating the data provided by GPS satellites, GIS software creates both accurate maps and powerful geographical databases for analysis. Professional-quality versions of both technologies are on the verge of widespread use in a variety of disciplines including environmental studies, engineering, geology, and archaeology.

At Sweet Briar, GPS/GIS has multiple uses both inside and outside the classroom. The College’s riding and outdoor programs, the buildings and grounds office, and the land-use committee will benefit along with students and professors in the sciences. “I don’t believe in technology for technology’s sake,” says Professor Fink. “But, in this case, the hardware and software really does give us the power to make better academic and recreational use of our 3,300 acres. Plus, this stuff is ‘hot.’ Students who have experience using these technologies will have greater employment opportunities.”

In addition to all its other on-campus uses, GPS/GIS has a valuable application in Professor Fink’s own research. She and her husband, biology professor Lincoln Brower, are monitoring the annual population and migration of monarch butterflies. Recently, the two researchers established a Butterfly Research Garden on the Sweet Briar campus, behind the SBC Train Station and Caboose. The X-shaped stand of butterfly bush (Buddleia davidii) attracts many species of butterflies from early summer through mid-autumn. Butterfly activity is weather dependent. On warm, clear afternoons through mid-September the researchers and their students can see hundreds of individuals.

The “X” is oriented to the compass (north-south-east-west) to allow the study of changes in monarchs’ flight directions as they shift from summer breeding generations to the fall migratory generation. The fall generation of monarch butterflies will migrate to sites high in the mountains of Mexico. Brower, one of the world's foremost experts on the species, is concerned that deforestation in butterflies' wintering sites in Mexico may seriously deplete the population.

"These butterflies go to very tiny areas in the forest where a big conservation problem exists," says Professor Fink. "Using GPS in combination with aerial photos, we can train our GIS software to give us a profile of conditions at these remote Mexican sites. It can help us answer questions like Is there illegal logging going on? or Are the butterflies moving downhill? It's a perfect example of how these technologies are good for much more than navigation and mapping. It's also a perfect way for students to learn just how powerful these tools can be in the studies of field biology and ecology."

Business with a Spanish Accent

"We're doing everything we can to make sure that Sweet Briar's new Spanish/business major dips down below the trees," says Bill Hostetler, associate professor of economics and director of the management program. "That's why we are actively searching for alumnae who have business experience related to Latin America. It could be in human relations, sales and marketing, accounting, supply, or manufacturing—we're not looking for a specific type of business or corporate position—all experiences and insights are welcome."

As the former coordinator of local industrial development for the Arabian Oil Company (ARAMCO) in Saudi Arabia, Professor Hostetler knows that subtle variations in a student's academic background and work experience can make or break a hiring decision. "It is one thing to get students into the applicant pool for consideration. It's another to get them selected for the job. We want our majors to pass both tests and, later, move up the organizational ladder."

The new major is the interdisciplinary brainchild of Professor Hostetler and Dr. Alix Ingber, professor of Spanish and associate dean of academic affairs. The curriculum combines courses in Spanish language and Hispanic culture with courses in accounting, marketing, management, and international business. Where appropriate, economics courses include material that relates specifically to the culture and business environment of the Hispanic world.

Computer literacy is emphasized throughout the major. Students use technology to conduct research, develop graphical presentations, submit coursework, and correspond with professors. Majors are also encouraged to take relevant courses in other departments such as cultural anthropology, environmental ethics, or international politics.

Explaining where alumnae fit into the mix, Dr. Ingber points out that "We can always count on alumnae to tell us what they know about life after Sweet Briar. They're willing to give us the inside story, speaking not only as professionals, but as former students and as women. We value their 'on the ground' perspective, especially when it comes to working in cultures that are not as accepting of women in the workforce."

The required coursework for Spanish/business is evenly divided between Spanish and economics. The major culminates in the senior year with two courses: Spanish 222 in the fall, and an interdisciplinary senior exercise in the spring. Last semester, instead of focusing on traditional literary analysis and research techniques, Spanish/business majors in 222 were developing the marketing analysis and research tools necessary to support their interdisciplinary projects.

"The research majors are immersed in this year will benefit all students to follow," explains Dr. Ingber. "They are doing research on the major itself, devising a survey that will help them in part to package themselves as job candidates."

Alumnae interested in sharing their experiences with Spanish/business majors can contact Dr. Ingber by VOICE (804) 381-6206, FAX (804) 381-6489, E-MAIL ingber@sbc.edu.

New Computer Science Major

Speaking with Bob Chase, professor of mathematical sciences, it is no surprise to hear that Sweet Briar has an "old girls" network established in the relatively young computer science industry. After all, SBC is the "most wired" women's college in the United States. What is amazing, however, is that the College

List of New and Revised Computer Science Offerings

(Revised) C++ Programming: An introduction to computer science and object oriented programming in C++. Topics include data types through arrays, and functions. Structured programming, object-oriented design, and the testing of programs will be stressed.

(New) Applications Development: A team-oriented software engineering-based approach to the design and maintenance of large practical software projects using a commercial development environment emphasizing component reuse, revision control, and test case development.

(New) Java Programming: Object-oriented programming methods for platform-independent applications development and World Wide Web (WWW) applet development using the Java programming language.

(Revised) Software Methods: Advanced programming techniques including object oriented design and programming, recursion, searching and sorting, algorithm development, and structured programming.

(New) Digital Logic: An examination of the underlying computer hardware including gates, combinational circuits and arithmetic and logic circuits, and clock-sequential circuits implementing registers, memory, addressing schemes, and control logic.

(New) Algorithm Analysis: Rigorous analysis of algorithms for searching and sorting, use of data structures such as hash tables and binary search trees and techniques such as dynamic programming and greedy algorithms. Emphasis is on asymptotic time and space complexity - best and worst case as well as amortized analysis.

(New) Operating Systems: The software systems which manage computer hardware. Topics include processes, interprocess communication, deadlock, memory management, swapping, paging, virtual memory, input/output management, file systems, protection, security, distributed and multiprocessor machines.

(New) Topics in Computer Science: Content varies yearly. Examples include: Using the UNIX operating system; UNIX internals; real-time audio and video systems; communications networks, programming languages.

did not even offer a computer science major until this fall.

“We’ve had a mathematics-computer science major in place for a number of years,” explains Professor Chase. “These majors have had no difficulty landing good jobs with starting salaries that continue to shock me! Quite a few are in positions now where they can assist with internships and job opportunities. They’re very generous about it, e-mailing the department to let us know that they’re ready and willing to help. Meantime, we’ve been looking forward to building on this success with a new, separate computer science major.”

Reaching into his file cabinet, Professor Chase pulls out the latest statistics. “The demand for information-technology workers is incredible. There are currently 345,000 positions unfilled in the United States; 25,000 in Virginia alone. Still, we did not want to respond to either student requests or industry needs by offering just any computer science major. We wanted to ensure that our graduates would continue to stand out.”

In preparation for the new

major, Sweet Briar’s department of mathematical sciences re-designed its entire computer science curriculum to emphasize “real world” practices. The task also involved faculty recruitment and retraining. “We now have the breadth of courses and the faculty expertise to support a pure computer science major,” says Chase. “This is what our students wanted and the response has been overwhelmingly favorable.

We have more majors now than ever before.”

Like all other Sweet Briar students, computer science majors benefit from small classes, access to faculty, independent work, and hands-on research. But the working relationships these majors form with professors may prove to be more critical in the short term. After all, who do the computer experts call when they need help?

“Yes,” Professor Chase happily admits, “I’ve answered more than one panic call. But that’s standard. No matter how well prepared you are, first jobs are always a little frightening. I’ve had graduates tossed—bang!—into the middle of huge corporate networks. I think just knowing that they could call made a difference. Sometimes you just need someone else to confirm what you already know. Then, you’re fine.”

SWEET BRIAR COLLEGE—

WE'RE NOT "JUST LIBERAL ARTS" ANYMORE

By Catherine Lumsden '78

Sweet Briar College provides a fine liberal arts education for young women. But are you aware of its strong standing in the scientific and technical communities? Recent additions to the curriculum have made Sweet Briar even more appealing to young women who plan a technical career. To better prepare graduates for careers within the technical arena, the College now offers a computer science major.

Sweet Briar also offers an engineering dual-degree program with Columbia University or Washington University in St. Louis. Under this program, a student combines three years of accelerated study at Sweet Briar with two years of study at the cooperating institution, earning a bachelor of science degree from Sweet Briar and a B.S. degree in engineering (mechanical, chemical, civil, electrical, nuclear and others), health systems, computer science, or management science from the other school. More and more women attending Sweet Briar are opting to pursue technical careers.

Sweet Briar alumnae are found throughout the entire spectrum of technological and scientific fields. Not only are many of our graduates doctors; many are computer specialists, including software developers, military officers, engineers, and research scientists. The Research Triangle area in North Carolina is home to more than 150 graduates and students. Dr. Margaret Leigh '73 is professor of pediatrics and chief of the Division of Pulmonary Medicine and Allergy at the University of North Carolina. Dr. Leigh states that Sweet Briar prepared her for medical school. "I had a solid foundation in science through courses in biology, chemistry and physics, as well as a broad understanding of the liberal arts. Perhaps Sweet Briar's greatest impact on me and my classmates who have pursued a variety of careers is the self-confidence and self-esteem that evolved from the small classroom environment. I think that we were challenged to 'speak our minds' more than women in a large classroom, university environment might be. We certainly had the confidence that we could succeed in any area if we worked effectively." A number of Dr. Leigh's classmates have successful careers in science, as well as in business, social work, advertising, creative writing and creative arts.

Katie Clarkson, Class of 1997, is a software engineer in Raleigh. She develops and services the communications server software for the OS/390 (an operating system for mainframe computers). She attributes Sweet Briar with providing her with the technical knowledge she needs in her daily activities at IBM: "Sweet Briar taught me how to learn. In this job, you have to be able to think on your feet. Things change so quickly that you are constantly learning new things. The ability to truly think and learn 'on the fly' has proven to be equally as beneficial as, if not more beneficial than, my technical skills."

Perhaps Sweet Briar's greatest impact on me... is the self-confidence and self-esteem that evolved from the small classroom environment. I think that we were challenged to 'speak our minds' more than women in a... university environment might be. We certainly had the confidence that we could succeed...

—Dr. Margaret Leigh '73

Katie has the highest accolades for Sweet Briar. For women pursuing a technical degree, she lauds not only the College's curriculum but also the professors. "If there was a subject area that I wanted to know more about, my professors were always very willing to set up an independent study with me in that area. Never did I have to worry about not gaining knowledge because there was not a class offered on a particular subject. I quickly found that the only limits on my learning were the ones that I created. There was nothing that I couldn't do if I really wanted to do it. My professors were always available for questions and encouraged me to 'think outside of the box.' They got just as excited as I did when I succeeded. If I could give one piece of advice to prospective students interested in computer science at Sweet

Sweet Briar taught me how to learn. In this job, you have to be able to think on your feet. Things change so quickly that you are constantly learning new things.

—Katie Clarkson '97

Briar, it would be GO FOR IT! It truly is what you make of it—the sky is your limit.”

This flexibility in designing a program to fit the student's needs is a major focus at the College and one that is not present at large universities. At Sweet Briar, young women, with the help of independent studies, are able to customize a major, structuring a technical degree that best suits their needs.

Another recent graduate, Kindle Samuel '98, is completing her master of accounting degree at the University of North Carolina's School of Business. She shares Katie's enthusiasm for the foundation Sweet Briar provided for a technical career. The world of public accounting is very dynamic and the traditional ideas that many people have about accounting no longer hold true. Kindle credits her liberal arts background as providing her with a more essential set of skills, specifically, high analytic skills. “I am able to examine information and articulate on a conceptual and detailed level what is going on; this I learned at Sweet Briar. Although the type of information that I am analyzing is new to me, knowing ‘how to’ allows me to make the transition.”

Sweet Briar gave Kindle a unique opportunity to get involved in just about everything. In job interviews, she speaks freely of her leadership experiences, teamwork, community service, working outside of her “comfort zone,” as well as her ability to set and achieve goals. “This is what employers want to hear and talk about. Sweet Briar is definitely the place where you can get super exposure and have unbelievable opportunity and support, not only to become involved in something, but to stick with it and help it grow and become better.”

Many of Kindle's business school classmates went to large, big-name schools, were undergraduate business majors, and had more exposure to the subject matter. But Kindle has learned that what matters to employers is that prospective employees are intelligent and can learn. When she and her classmates were preparing for employment interviews, many classmates struggled to come up with pertinent leadership and teamwork experiences. Kindle's struggle was to figure out how she would be able to fit into a one-hour interview all of her experiences at Sweet Briar. Her Sweet Briar education has given Kindle an advantage over her classmates by providing her with very marketable assets.

The world is changing; so is the job market. Careers in technology are some of the most promising for the new graduate. A liberal arts education still provides an excellent foundation, but supplemented with a technical background it becomes even more marketable. Today's job market demands that college graduates be fluent in the use of the computer and conversant with basic software packages. With more and more companies relying on web sites to communicate their message, webmasters are an integral asset of a company's communication channel. But these webmasters must also know how to write, which is why the liberal arts education is so valuable. Presentation and writing skills are imperative to be successful. You must be able to communicate your message. The College's excellent English program coupled with technical courses provides the foundation for a graduate to be competitive in today's workforce.

To enhance the competitiveness of Sweet Briar graduates, many alumnae work closely with the College to coordinate internships, which offer the opportunity to gain valuable work experience and develop helpful contacts, during the academic year or in the summer. In the past, students have interned at large technology companies, including IBM, and SAS Institute, Inc. The College's Career Services Office puts students in touch with alumnae working within such companies who have agreed to serve as mentors and are happy to assist with internships.

If you know a young woman who plans to pursue a technical major, encourage her to take a close look at Sweet Briar. I think that she will be pleased with what the College has to offer.

Cathy Lumsden, who was an international affairs major at SBC, is a technical writer with SAS Institute, Inc. in Cary, North Carolina. A former naval officer, she received an M.A. in national security affairs with a specialization in Soviet and Asian studies from the Naval Postgraduate School in 1989. Currently she is working toward an M.S. in technical communication at North Carolina State University. And she is president of SBC's Triangle Alumnae Club.

Orientation 1998

By Katie Wright '00

Student Intern, Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine

In 1906, Orientation consisted of an informal meeting, a reception, an afternoon picnic, and a special evening exercise. A debate over school colors and election of the first student government officers took place. That first Orientation effort is not to be underestimated: all of the students were new—no upperclasswomen to serve as guides. The Class of 1910 had to orient itself! Ninety-two years later, Orientation for the Class of 2002 was very different.

Planning an Orientation program begins in the fall of the year before a new class enters, with the election of an Orientation Chairwoman. Meg Pollard '99 chaired 1998's Planning Committee, which included Dean of Co-Curricular Life Valdrie Walker; Assistant Dean of Co-Curricular Life Susan Iverson; Coordinator of Co-Curricular Programs Martha Woodroof; Associate Dean of Academic Affairs Alix Ingber; Director of SWEBOP (Sweet Briar College Outdoor Program) Laura Staman; Dean of the College George Lenz; and 23 student representatives who served as Orientation Group Leaders. During the weeklong Orientation program in August, faculty, staff, upperclasswomen and new students participated enthusiastically—a college-wide effort immersing all in an atmosphere of learning and fun. The theme was "This is the Place," chosen to help newcomers get acquainted with the College and the area.

The week concentrated on learning ins and outs of campus life: using the computer network and electronic mail, conducting research in the library, meeting with academic advisors, time/stress management, the Honor Code, placement and handbook tests, honors work orientation, sessions for students seeking campus jobs or loans, nautilus training—and memorizing the campus map! "Orientation is a good idea because it helps students get comfortable with the school," Katie Gjeldum (Wheaton, IL) said. First-Year Seminars, new this year, began Friday of Orientation week. Meant to introduce students to liberal arts education, these focus on analytical and creative abilities, and encourage inclusion and pursuit of different interests.

As part of Orientation's "This is the Place" theme, students took part in a new program called "Learning on the Land," a variety of exploratory sessions/group problem-solving activities which viewed the Sweet Briar environment from the perspective of different academic disciplines. Students chose from 19 topics. Coordinator Laura Staman set two goals for the exercise: "First, we wanted the students to connect with their classmates; second we wanted them to connect with the land. Sweet Briar's campus is an outstanding setting for an active lifestyle; an outdoor enthusiast has everything she wants right in her own backyard."

Faculty and staff led adventures around campus—excursions by foot, bike or horseback. Director of Riding Paul Cronin's group ("View From A Horse") observed environmental and historical issues on Sweet Briar land—the watershed, forests, streams, farmland, trails, and erosion controls. Associate Professor of Physical Education Bonnie Kestner led "Exploring The Many Facets of Water," hiking to explore the different ways in which water affects our lives, finding different campus water sources, experiencing water as both a cleansing and destructive agent, and enjoying recreational water activities—tubing on the lake and creating a water slide in a dell. Students with Lee Piepho ("Pastoral Sweet Briar"), Sara Shallenberger Brown Professor of English, discovered that the College and Sweet Briar House embody cultural ideals that stretch back to the Italian Renaissance. They looked at texts and pictures showing these origins, then walked through Sweet Briar House and grounds to see how they were adapted. Associate Professor of Studio Art Laura Pharis and Honors Fellow Greta Niu's group ("Inspired By Nature") gathered materials with which to draw, paint, and sculpt, using black walnut for charcoal, red Virginia clay for paint, and bird feather quills for drawing tools. And "The Sounds Of Flutes" group, led by Associate Professor of Dance Mark Magruder, journeyed to the campus' bamboo forest, an inspiring place of quiet beauty; everyone learned how to make and decorate a bamboo flute and received instructions on basics of flute playing. It's no surprise that Learning on the Land drew a positive response from the Class of 2002. Kristi Rose (Hamilton, VA), in Bonnie Kestner's group, noted: "No other way would I have gotten to explore the campus. I didn't even know those trails were there!" Stephanie

Roche (Lovettsville, VA) also enjoyed herself: "Learning on the Land was a great experience, an opportunity to explore the campus when I probably wouldn't have otherwise."

Each new student received a copy of The Story of Sweet Briar College by Martha Lou Lemmon Stohlman '34, and Tradition and Change, a four-part anthology of writings by members of the Sweet Briar community, past and present, about life at the College from its founding until now. Section one, "Remembering the Past," is composed of alumnae recollections, by decade, from 1906-1956, most of them excerpts from a special 1976 edition of the Alumnae Magazine, celebrating SBC's 75th anniversary. Section two, "Clippings: Primary Sources," features clips from the Sweet Briar News, from its first issue in 1927 to the present. Section three, "Doing Sweet Briar History: Analysis and Synthesis," tells of the effects of World War II on Sweet Briar, the integration of the College, the development of athletics, and changing admission standards from 1906 to 1934. Section four, a one-pager, includes "The Quiz" (questions to test what readers learned) and "The Challenge," urging: "Do your own Sweet Briar History: research a topic of interest and submit a paper for inclusion in 1999's anthology."

"Ice-breaker" and "Get-to-know-each-other" games, evening entertainments, free time for shopping trips (room decoration!), picnics, and Boat House parties filled out the week. "It was long and crazy but I met a lot of people I wouldn't have met otherwise!" said Cheyenne Sylvester (Olympia, WA).

I believe that Sweet Briar's founders would be pleased with Orientation 1998. And like the Class of 1910, the Class of 2002 is enthusiastic and ready to savor "this place."

WELCOMING REMARKS: FOUNDERS' DAY/OPENING CONVOCATION SEPTEMBER 25, 1998

By Melissa Henning '99

President of the Student Government Association

Welcome to this festive occasion, this day on which we celebrate the founders of Sweet Briar College and the start of a new academic year. This calling together unites those people who have gained some sort of connection to Sweet Briar, be it in the past or present. I welcome all of you, as you have chosen to take part in this meaningful, memorable ceremony that honors the dream of one woman, Indiana Fletcher Williams, a dream in which an academic institution would be built to educate young women.

Sweet Briar is unique in many ways, but the two most distinct assets I have found here are the College's physical setting, or its place, and its honor system. Sweet Briar's lush forests, rolling hills, whispering winds, and picturesque sunsets have captivated those of us who have spent extended periods of time here. Those of us who have studied here have been impressed by the sense of honor we gain just by coming here, attending classes and living here—and the integrity, trust, and respect we develop for and from our professors, administrators, and staff. Honor, once learned at Sweet Briar, becomes honor for life, a part of every woman's character. It permeates our thinking, defines our actions, and shapes our opinions.

On this day I am further reminded of the lyrics of the Sweet Briar song:

*Sweet Briar, Sweet Briar, thy columns white
Shine on thy rose a beacon
bright
Of truth to bear, and radiance
bright
Thy beauty, O Sweet Briar*

The song captures the essence of our foundation: the stateliness and goodness found in a solid, well-rounded education; the truth we inherit when we carry on in tradition and thanksgiving; a light into our futures as we set off into the world and promote change; and radiance, joy for our blessings of knowledge and hope. Sweet Briar's place offers boundless space for inspiration. One can go anywhere on our 3,300 acres to think or exercise, play or relax. It is a refuge in a fast-paced world. In many lives, it allows freedom to develop intellectually, socially, and spiritually, while challenging one academically, all at once. The life balance that may be gained from a Sweet Briar education is something of true essence.

Each of us here today has been granted the opportunity to bear a rose in Daisy Williams' name. Each of us has the ability to allow that rose to grow, bloom, open up, and then let the petals fall on fertile soil. If we welcome that opportunity, seize its potential, believe in ourselves, and apply it to our lives, we will succeed the way Indiana Fletcher Williams would have wanted us to. And most of all, if we integrate the Sweet Briar definition of honor into our lives forever, we will surely learn to embrace the world in a different way.

Sweet Briar College has certainly progressed since it first opened in 1906. It is still today, in the words of the first Board of Directors of the College, "a liberal arts college of the first rank." It is blessed with place, spirit, and honor. I hope you will join me in a continuing sense of awe, respect, and thanksgiving for our founders—for without them, we would not be here today.

1998 Alumna Daughter Scholarship

1998 Distinguished Alumna Award to KATHARINE CROMMELIN MILTON '62

Introduction of Katharine Milton at Founders' Day/Opening Convocation, September 25, 1998, by Kathy Garcia Pegues, president of the Alumnae Association

As the new president of the Sweet Briar Alumnae Association, it is a great privilege to be the one to present the 1998 Distinguished Alumna Award, one of the College's highest honors. The award is being presented for the first time to an alumna in the field of anthropology. The winner, Dr. Katharine Crommelin Milton of Sweet Briar's Class of 1962, is professor of anthropology at the University of California at Berkeley. Katharine has an excellent record as both a teacher and a researcher, and I am very proud to welcome her back to Sweet Briar to receive her award.

It is a long way—and a far cry—from the leafy dells of Sweet Briar to the remote jungles of Brazil. Katherine took that route, though, with some diversions, and spends a great deal of her time doing research in the Amazonian rain forest as well as Panama and Papua New Guinea. She has endured primitive living conditions, infestation by parasites, and a bad bout of malaria, yet has pressed on to continue her research, making important contributions to the field of anthropology. She is an expert in primatology, and specializes in diet and nutrition, studying the diets of non-human primates and of remote, forest-dwelling humans, and her work provides insight into what may be the best diet for modern humans.

Much of Katharine's research is funded by the most prestigious organizations in the scientific world, such as the National Science Foundation, the National Geographic Society, the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, and the University of California at Berkeley itself, and its Center for Latin-American Studies. To mention just one of her numerous accomplishments: her 1980 book, The Foraging Strategy of Howler Monkeys: A Study in Primate Economics, was highly innovative and influential, essentially showing aspiring primatologists how to conduct a field study; and in 1988, she and a colleague published in the Journal of Nutrition the first-ever study of the digestive physiology of chimpanzees. They pointed out that the human digestive system is identical in most respects to that of chimps. Katharine is currently writing an article for the same journal comparing the diets of modern humans and the primates; in it she suggests that humans take a careful look at what monkeys and apes and chimps are eating!

Katharine has a very broad academic background, as one would expect from an evolutionary biologist, a dietary ecologist, and an anthropologist. She credits her experience at Sweet Briar with helping her to synthesize research from several different perspectives. Majoring in English, she spent her junior year in Spain and was active in many campus clubs and programs. She earned a master's degree in 20th century English from the University of Iowa, then a second master's degree and the Ph.D., both in anthropology, New York University. She started teaching at Berkeley, which is still her academic "home," and has won an Excellence in Teaching Award from Phi Beta Kappa of Northern California. In 1995 she was named a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The scholarly journals in which Katharine's work appears are far too numerous for me to list, but I'll name a few: The American Journal of Physical Anthropology; the American Anthropologist; the International Journal of Primatology; the American Journal of Primatology; the Journal of Mammalogy; the American Naturalist; Ecology; Current Anthropology; and Scientific American. Katharine has been an invited speaker for many distinguished gatherings, including international symposia in Paris and meetings of London's Royal Society. And now, despite her crammed schedule, she is here with us!

Katharine's work advances the frontiers of knowledge, as she goes off alone into the uncharted jungle, returns home to make sense of what she has found, then shares it with all of the world. This takes a tremendous amount of dedication, stamina, generosity, and also real physical courage. Sweet Briar College is proud to salute Katharine's achievements and to claim her as one of our own.

ACCEPTANCE OF AWARD

By Dr. Katharine Crommelin Milton

Thank you for nominating me for the 1998 Sweet Briar Distinguished Alumna Award. When I look at the quality of the women who have received this award in the past, I feel honored. It is wonderful to be back at Sweet Briar and to be able to speak briefly today to you—faculty, students, staff, parents and friends.

...my education at Sweet Briar College...set me free to follow wherever my mind and interests would take me—trained as a young woman at a women's college to be fully confident in my abilities.

I came to Sweet Briar after graduating from a public high school in Montgomery, Alabama. This high school was named Sydney Lanier, which you have to admit is a rather unusual name for a high school. Our poor football team, the Poets, had to play under the slogan, "The pen is mightier than the sword," but perhaps it was this rather quirky ambience that first made me aware of the power of the written word and the excitement that might come from using one's mind.

However, when I came to Sweet Briar, even though Sydney Lanier was an excellent school, I have to confess that I was still a bit of a sleepwalker. It was one of the famous Ramage sisters, Professor Sarah Ramage, whom I credit with what might be termed my moment of intellectual awakening. This moment came in her Chaucer class, which to this day remains the best class I have ever taken. The semester started and I dutifully read the material and attended my classes, confident that I was doing a good job. However, then came the first exam and when my paper was returned, I'd made a D. A D—how could I have gotten a D! English literature was my best subject and I loved the class!

Well, I thought, Professor Ramage has somehow made a mistake. So I went to her with my exam and asked her about it. She gently pointed out that I had managed to regurgitate many Chaucerian facts onto each page but that I had failed to take these facts and use them in some constructive and original manner to address and answer her questions. Eureka—that was it, something clicked and my mind took off.

I vividly remember all of my professors at Sweet Briar, for example, the wonderful Shakespearian scholar Professor Lawrence Nelson, who taught us English literature but also took Goshen with a group of students, he saw me come bouncing down the river in my inner tube, smashing into rocks, totally soaked and obviously out of my mind with joy, and he remarked in his dry way to the students: "That girl has naturally high spirits!" This comment was repeated to me by a friend and I tucked it away but I never forgot it. In my later anthropological work in Brazil, as I came bouncing down rapid-filled rivers full of piranhas, sharp rocks, and fatal whirlpools in tiny dugout canoes steered by Indians, I would repeat to myself like a mantra, "Remember, Katie, you have naturally high spirits." And this mantra seems to have worked so far!

Sweet Briar College gave me the tools I needed to go out and forge a useful and productive life. Many different life stages are spoken of by experts as formative, but what could be more formative than one's four years of college, particularly if you are fortunate enough to be attending a wonderful women's college? For the first time you are out of your family environment on your own and generally can pursue just about whatever interests you without the later distraction of a 9-to-5 job and demands of a family. There simply is no other period in our lives that offers this freedom and, of course, it is not by chance that it comes at the age when the human mind has become sufficiently developed to make good use of this intellectual experience.

A college education traditionally was undertaken as a type of personal mental odyssey. No pragmatic or monetary return was expected from it—rather, this experience was viewed as a means of delving into the richness of human thought and history. But while doing this, a good liberal arts education also serves as a link which connects us to all other generations—past, present, and future—and instills in us the time to interact informally with his students in ways I feel were critical in developing not only our minds but also our character. Little comments that we hear when we are young, if they are positive or even hopeful, can often have a lasting impact. Professor Nelson occasionally went with us as we tubed the Goshen River—one of my favorite activities.

One day as Professor Nelson was standing on the shore of the desire to try to contribute in a constructive way to this panhuman experience.

My later training in anthropology I view as a logical outcome of this early training at Sweet Briar. My particular field is biological anthropology, which is the study of human behavior and morphology from an evolutionary perspective.

Initially I studied the dietary behavior of wild primates—primates of interest to anthropologists because monkeys and apes are our closest living relatives. In my work with howler monkeys and spider monkeys in Panama, for example, I was able to document many differences in their feeding behavior. Howler monkeys eat diets very high in young leaves, which tend to be fairly abundant in tropical forests. For this reason, howler monkey troops have small supplying areas and do not have to travel a long distance each day to find their foods. In contrast, spider monkeys eat diets composed almost exclusively of ripe fruits. But since ripe fruits are far less abundant in tropical forests than leaves, spider monkeys must travel long distances each day to find their foods. As a result they have huge supplying areas, 10 to 20 times the size of those of howler monkeys. Though howler monkeys and spider monkeys have the same body size, spider monkeys have a brain size double the brain size of howler monkeys. I have hypothesized that this striking brain size difference relates to the unusual challenges faced by spider monkeys in locating sufficient wild fruits each day. Such a diet appears to call for unusual development of learning abilities, memory and navigational skills to locate these foods efficiently—this reflected in the large brain size of spider monkeys.

Human evolution likewise is characterized by a considerable increase in brain size—for example, humans and adult chimpanzees are not very different in body size but the human brain is three times the size of the chimp's. I view initial stimulus for enhanced brain size in the human lineage as likewise stimulated by foraging challenges—probably a climatic change and strong decrease in plant food availability that in essence forced our ancestors to either sharpen their wits to meet this challenge or go extinct.

The human dietary niche is unique. Humans are cultural omnivores—that is, they use learned information and learned behaviors (cultural traditions, and technologies) to create viable diets and take care of other essential requirements no matter where they live, this extraordinary learning ability based on their extensive mental development and very large brains. Thus I've found that my studies of wild primates have helped me to better visualize factors that may have been important in the evolution of my own species.

My growing interest in human behavior led me in 1981 to begin to examine features of the dietary ecology of indigenous peoples living in tropical forests of Brazil. In this research, I've now had the privilege of living with seven of the least-contacted indigenous groups in the Brazilian Amazon. I am particularly interested in the different uses each society makes of forest products, both plants and animals, as foods and also for other purposes such as medicine. Though forest peoples are often regarded as ecologically quite similar, my research helps to demonstrate the rich variety of different ecological traditions forest-based peoples possess and thus emphasizes the loss to all of us in terms of unique human knowledge when even one of these groups suffers cultural extinction, as has been happening at an accelerated rate.

One of my more interesting discoveries concerns the use of a secretion from an Amazonian forest tree frog, Phylomedusa bicolor. This frog is captured by Panoan-speakers such as the Mayoruna or Matis and the secretion is scraped from the skin of the frog and dried. Later it is placed in fresh burns of men who plan a big hunting expedition the next day; it enters their blood stream and produces a dramatic physiological effect. The Indians claim that the secretion sharpens their senses when hunting as well as bringing them good luck.

I was able to bring a sample of the frog secretion out of the jungle with me and sent it to Dr. John Daly at the National Institutes of Health. His laboratory was ultimately able to identify a new peptide from this secretion, adenoregulin, that has promise in the treatment of some human diseases. Of note too is the fact that though this frog species is found over a huge area of Amazonia, generally only Panoan-speaking groups use it—illustrating the fact that different forest cultures may develop different pharmacological traditions even though the same natural product is available to them all.

Pictures of tribal peoples often present them in fierce poses which do not really reflect their behavior. Today I put together a few slides to show you how the people I work with look when carrying out their everyday activities. Not only are they vibrant and extraordinarily capable and intelligent; of note too is the fact that they are also largely free of most chronic health problems—heart disease, high blood pressure, diabetes, obesity—that plague people in western societies such as our own. Study of their diets and activity patterns may help us to better understand some of the factors that contribute to some of these western health problems.

I feel that I am truly fortunate to have had the opportunity to live with people who are still removed from industrialization and have very few material goods. I have learned a great deal from them about what it means to be human when existing as a part of nature rather than living apart from nature as we western peoples live today. It is sad to think that many American schoolchildren know little about the natural world or grow up believing that owning many possessions will make them happy.

In summing up, I would say that my education at Sweet Briar College, by teaching me how to think systematically and solve intellectual problems and by exposing me to the richness of different fields of thought, set me free to follow wherever my mind and interests would take me—trained as a young woman at a women's college to be fully confident in my abilities. A good liberal arts education does for you what no other training can—it opens your mind to a wide range of different subjects and gives you full exposure to the grand sweep of human endeavor and accomplishment. Then this knowledge is carried away with you on graduation to serve as a steadfast friend throughout your life, one who is always there to offer inspiration, insight, strength, comfort and hope.

The many books I read at Sweet Briar, the lectures and discussions I participated in, the life experiences I shared have stayed with me all of my adult life and have never failed to enrich it. Hopefully too, through my own research and teaching, I am able to return some of these benefits to my own students and continue the dynamic cycle of learning and discovery.

Thank you again for presenting me with the 1998 Sweet Briar Distinguished Alumna Award.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Margaret Leigh '73 Named One of "Best Doctors in America"

Margaret Leigh, a pediatrician at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine in Chapel Hill, was recently listed among The Best Doctors in America (copyright 1999 by Woodward/White, Inc. of Aiken, SC). The survey to compile the "Best Doctors" is based on peer-review evaluation. For the current listing, more than 30,000 doctors throughout the United States were asked to rate other doctors in their areas of specialization. Only those physicians who earned the consensus support of their peers were included in the final listing.

Margaret is professor of pediatrics and chief of the Division of Pulmonary Medicine & Allergy at UNC-Chapel Hill. She is also director of the University's Cystic Fibrosis Care Center. A fellowship in pulmonology took Margaret to UNC-Chapel Hill in 1982, where she has continued her career, winning numerous honors including the Edward Livingston Trudeau Scholar Award (1985) and the Faculty Teaching Award from the pediatric housestaff (1993-94). Continuously listed in The Best Doctors in America since 1994, she is also listed in The Best Doctors in America: Southeast Region, and Who's Who in North America.

Following her SBC degree in

chemistry, Margaret earned an M.D. from Eastern Virginia Medical School. Before joining UNC, she did an internship in pediatrics at Children's Hospital of Kings' Daughters in Norfolk, VA and her residency training at the University of Kentucky.

Margaret has a distinguished record of professional service to the University and to numerous national organizations. To mention just a few of her commitments: she is a Fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics and member of the American Board of Pediatrics, for which she chaired the Sub-board of Pediatric Pulmonology (1997-98). She serves on the planning committees for the Pediatric Assembly Program of the American Lung Association/American Thoracic Society and for the annual North American Cystic Fibrosis Conferences. A frequent speaker and invited lecturer, she has published widely in professional journals including The New England Journal of Medicine and Pediatrics, and has contributed to many books and textbooks.

She is the sister of Winborne "Winnie" Leigh Hamlin '58 and daughter of the late Maud Winborne Leigh '35.

Sweet Briar is proud to see Margaret, one of its stellar graduates, win this national recognition.

Amy Woods '95 Attends International Women's Conference

Amy Woods was recently invited by the U.S. Government to assist with a conference on international women's issues held in Montevideo, Uruguay October 1-3, 1998. One of the key speakers was The First Lady of the United States, Hilary Rodham Clinton. Entitled "Vital Voices of the Americas: Women in Democracy," and co-sponsored by the U.S. government and the Inter-American Development Bank, the conference brought together over 400 women from the region with the purpose of forming networks of women leaders who will actively participate in building democratic institutions in the developing countries of Latin America and the Caribbean. The conference was inspired by the 1995 United Nations Fourth World Conference on Women in Beijing, China—a gathering which Amy, then a Sweet Briar student intern in the State Department's Bureau of International Organizations, helped to organize.

Amy works for the nonprofit organization InterAction, a coalition of 164 international development, disaster relief, and refugee assistance agencies. She is a program associate for InterAction's Commission on the Advancement of Women, which works to incorporate gender equity into member agencies' policies and practices. This year, Amy has worked with InterAction members, government officials, and UN representatives to draw attention to the issue of gender in complex emergencies. A complex emergency, such as the situation in the former Yugoslavia, has an enormous impact on families and the roles that men and women play within it. Relief organizations are often overwhelmed by the disaster or outpouring of refugees and do not have the time or the tools to address gender issues. Through a series of workshops and a publication, Amy and her colleagues have addressed gender integration in disaster and refugee assistance in the context of health care, personal security, economic production, and education.

"My student internships were a big part of the reason I was invited to the conference in Uruguay," said Amy. While a student at Sweet Briar majoring in international affairs and French, Amy sought a number of international internships. As well as at the State Department, she held internships at the White House and the British-American Chamber of Commerce. During her junior year, which she spent at the University of Geneva with Cornell University's Study Abroad Program, she also interned at the International Catholic Migration Committee in Geneva. Following her graduation from Sweet Briar (summa cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa, with a listing in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges), Amy entered Georgetown University's Graduate School of Foreign Service. While at Georgetown, she continued to intern, spending a year with the U.S. Committee for Refugees and a summer with the then-U.S. Ambassador to France, the late Pamela Harriman, at the embassy in Paris. In 1997, Amy earned her M.S. in foreign service from Georgetown.

Amy credits Sweet Briar with giving her the chance to take leadership positions which she might not have had at a larger institution. From Sweet Briar's perspective, the College is proud that Amy made the most of every opportunity and has already reached an impressive level in her exciting career.

Lee Giannakis Minaidis '71 Elected to Rhodes City Council

By Katie Wright '00
Student Intern, Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine

Lee Minaidis of Rhodes, Greece won her election to City Council. She is one of four women elected this term to the 25-member council, and will begin her duties in January 1999. Lee also serves on several community and governmental boards including the Mayor's Environmental Board, the Municipal Writers and Translation Center, and the Rhodes International Affairs and Public Relations Committees. She has served on the latter two committees since 1995 and will chair both this next council term.

Lee has lived in Rhodes since 1972, and met and married her husband Vassos that year in November. Vassos is the owner of the Hotel Apollo Beach on the island of Rhodes, president of the Rhodes Hotel Owners Association, and vice president of the National Federation of Hotel Owners.

October 12, 1998, the day after winning the first round of the elections, Lee and Vassos had a celebration dinner aboard ship in Rhodes harbor with tour hosts Bill and Nannette McBurney Crowdus'57 and the rest of the Sweet Briar group on the Alumnae Association's Alumnae College Tour of the Greek Isles and Turkey. It has become traditional for Lee and Vassos to meet

Sweet Briar alumnae tours visiting Rhodes: in 1995 the Minaidises entertained former SBC President Barbara Hill and family, Alumnae Director Louise Swiecki Zingaro'80, and Dean George Lenz and wife Ellen, along with the other Sweet Briar travelers.

Lee and Sweet Briar are keeping connections close!

Sally Twedell Bagley '67 Receives Top Junior League Award

Reprinted with permission from the June 1998 Mini Leagues magazine of The Junior League of Richmond [VA]

By Sherryl Anne Pace

Since 1976, the Barbara Ransome Andrews Award has been given to a member of The Junior League of Richmond for outstanding community service and commitment. The award is named for one of our most esteemed and beloved members, Barbara Ransome Andrews, who was President of The Junior League from 1963-64. Representing the very best qualities of a Junior League member, her legacy continues to inspire everyone. This year's recipient has a record of volunteer service in the Richmond community spanning three decades. The recipient of the 1998 Barbara Ransome Andrews Award is Sally Twedell Bagley, who has touched the lives of thousands in the community and inspired countless volunteers and youngsters to strive for uncommon goals.

Lee Minaidis

Every organization that Sally has come in contact with has benefited from her organizational skills, incredible energy, and positive outlook. Sally has the uncanny ability to elicit the full potential of fellow volunteers or young piano students. Her résumé is exhaustive: President of The Junior League of Richmond 1979-80, Chairman of the Mayo-Carter House Endowment Fund, President of the Junior Board of the Children's Hospital, President of the Sweet Briar College Alumnae Club, President of the Woman's Club and the Bolling Haxall House Foundation, Chairman of the Development Committee for the Council of the Virginia Museum, Liaison Committee of the Science Museum, Historic Richmond Foundation, Maymont Foundation, Board of The Children's Museum of Richmond, and most recently she is Co-Chair of the Day of Style for the Virginia Museum Council. This is only a brief synopsis of her extensive involvement in the Richmond community. All of this in addition to being a full-time wife, mother to two children, an avid traveller with her husband, and a self-employed piano teacher teaching 30 students a week and producing a music recital every year! Anne Hardage describes her as "the original Energizer Bunny that keeps going and going."

Sally has been instrumental in the major changes in The Junior League of Richmond which ultimately has benefited the entire Richmond community. As an active member, she helped relocate The Clothes Rack to its present location. Years of hard work at The Clothes Rack brought incredible amounts of money to The Junior League's Community Chest which went directly to benefit the Richmond area. As a sustainer, she has been very active and even "Raised the Roof" with her campaign to raise money for the failing roof of the Mayo-Carter House and to help establish an endowment fund for the Mayo-Carter House. After helping with the relocation of The Junior League of Richmond's Headquarters to the Mayo-Carter House on Franklin Street, Sally recognized the critical need to revitalize downtown Richmond, and was able to get League Leadership to understand the historical significance of the Mayo-Carter House and its importance in working with other Franklin Street neighbors in encouraging people and businesses to relocate in the downtown area. The Franklin Street Association has thrived under her guidance.

Peg Freeman describes Sally

as "an excellent leader and manager who motivates and encourages others to participate by recognizing their individual talents and abilities. She inspires others with her energy and enthusiasm. She is a good listener and a friend to everyone."

A St. Louis native, Sally is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of SBC with a major in music. She was an Emilie Watts McVeigh Scholar (highest-ranking member of her class) and received the Theodore Presser Music Scholarship. She continued her studies with a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship to the University of Virginia, earning a master's degree in music in 1970.

Kathy Knox Ennis '60 Ordained To Episcopal Diaconate

By Helen Gwinn Wallace '41

In a beautiful and moving ceremony on June 13th, 1998 at St. Peter's Episcopal Cathedral in St. Petersburg, FL, six men and women were ordained to the Diaconate, among them Kathleen Knox Ennis, Sweet Briar Class of 1960. It was the culmination of a four-year process of discernment, study, and work in preparation for ordination, as well as many hours of service to her home parish of St. Monica's Episcopal Church in Naples, FL. Kathy's family participated in the service, along with The Reverend John Adler, her mentor and sponsor, from her home church. A large group of her fellow parishioners traveled to St. Petersburg to lend their support.

After graduation from Sweet Briar, Kathy, a Spanish major who spent her junior year in Spain, went to Colombia, South America, where she taught English as a second language. There she met and married Dick Ennis, who worked for the United States government. In the following years they lived in Guayaquil, Ecuador, the Dominican Republic, Chicago, Virginia, Ft. Lauderdale, FL, and finally Naples. During these years Kathy and Dick raised and educated four children.

Kathy says she had felt drawn to the religious life for many years. As a lay person she was indispensable to her home parish and community. She has served as a Guardian ad Litem, and for several years was on the Rape

Crisis Team for Project Help in Collier County. During her years at St. Monica's, Kathy took communion to the sick, conducted services of Communion under Special Circumstances at adult living facilities and the chemical dependency unit at the local mental health center, did pastoral visiting, trained acolytes and chalice bearers, and served at weekday and evening Eucharists.

When her youngest child graduated from college in 1993, Kathy called on her parish priest and inquired as to the options available to her in the religious field, among them the Diaconate. After prayer for guidance, Kathy was assured of her calling and undertook the preparation for her future as permanent deacon.

The first year was year of discernment, which included working with a lay committee, interviews with the Commission on Ministry, psychological testing, a psychiatric interview, and a work agreement with the supervising priest. This period of discernment was followed by three years of academic work and study and a third-year project, which for Kathy was campus ministry at Florida's newest state university, Florida Gulf Coast University. This is a joint Episcopal/Lutheran (ELCA) ministry that is a vital part of United Campus Ministries at FGCU. Kathy is there in a pastoral capacity for students, staff, and faculty, takes part in campus life and, with representatives of other denominations, holds ecumenical prayer services four days a week. As Kathy explained, deacons represent the "servant ministry" of the church, as Christ came "not to be served, but to serve."

Kathy says, "Ordination Day was one of the happiest days of my life." It was certainly a proud day for Sweet Briar College.

Mina Walker Wood '62 Praised for Museum Work

Lifelong Supporter Leaves Mark At Point Of Honor

Mina Wood Says Museum Will Always Hold A Place In Her Heart

By Kristin Patterson
The News & Advance

Mina Wood remembers, as a little girl, hearing her mother and aunt talk about Point of Honor.

She also remembers them helping to raise the $1,000 that would be needed to build a fence around the museum.

She remembers when Point of Honor was sold to the city for $1 and was used as a children's playground. She also remembers its doors being open to restoration in the late 1960s.

As a lifelong resident of Lynchburg, Wood could not help but become involved with Point of Honor.

After marrying a local boy, supporting him through law school and starting to raise a family, she began volunteering. She started as a member of the grounds committee in the late 1970s, joined the board of managers in 1981 and advanced to chairwoman just four years ago.

She has watched Point of Honor flourish.

Now, Wood, 57, is preparing to retire from her time with Point of Honor, after helping raise more than $1,000,000. The Bertha Green Webster Carriage House, the 19th-century period kitchen and the endowment to run those buildings have come to Point of Honor partially as a result of Wood's efforts. She has also been instrumental in Point of Honor activities such as fall festivals, spring lectures on topics surrounding Point of Honor and shows and tours of the mansion.

But she'll never toot her own

horn or let anyone else toot it for her.

"We've all worked hard," Wood said of the board of managers. "And we've had so much fun."

Wood said she enjoyed tremendously the luncheons she helped prepare at Point of Honor and the other fund-raising events she helped with.

"Mina is one of those people who hold Point of Honor in a very special place in their hearts," said Tom Ledford, museum administrator for the City of Lynchburg.

Point of Honor is one of the things that, along with her husband and three sons, makes her swell with pride, she said.

"It has an aesthetic value to it," she said. "We want to make it a dynamic place and get more people involved. We've always desired to involve more people in Point of Honor."

And though she knows it's time to retire, Wood said she'll miss it. She does plan to stay involved with the museum.

"I'll always be a friend to Point of Honor," she said.

On the subject of the recent use of graphics in the magazine: "Quoth the [editor], 'Nevermore!'"

While I commend your articles and alumnae news, I hasten to ask you to look again at your graphics. The use of half tones in the past issue (summer/fall '98) was so misused that these old eyes could not read many of the pages without a great deal of strain...especially President Muhlenfeld's message on the inside cover.

What had been only a "snowflake" in the previous publication had become a blizzard throughout this issue. Overdone, and serving as an impediment for communication, the policy of using half tones so indiscriminately should be reexamined.

Another suggestion is to settle on more uniform size and type faces. The myriad choices such as the thin scripted picture captions and the reduced print size of your feature articles do not add to the enjoyment of what is otherwise a fine publication.

Thanks for the charming article called "Vignettes from a Time Capsule" in the winter/spring issue...not only was it engaging enough to share with friends, but the article was printed so I could read it easily.

—Helen A. Passano '55

Helen, you definitely are not alone in your reactions! We have had notes, letters, e-mails and, during Fall Council meetings, on-the-spot verbal messages about graphics and readability. We are mending our ways!—ed.

I wanted to express my concern and dismay regarding the clip art you chose to serve as background for the Class Note section of the Fall/Winter Alumnae Magazine. The graphics depicted were wedding bells, a diaper pin, an engagement ring and a suitcase. None of these images connote Sweet Briar as being a school for successful, ambitious career women. Indeed, they further the stereotype of SBC as a place where one goes to receive her "Mrs." Degree and nothing more.

There are many alums, myself included, who have chosen the path of marriage and motherhood. There are also many alums, myself included, who have gone on to receive advanced degrees from other institutions and successfully further their careers. More appropriate graphics would include a diploma, a "quill and scroll" or a computer terminal. "Career neutral" graphics could include a blossoming rose or the SBC crest.

I would strongly encourage young women today to attend Sweet Briar in order to receive a solid education. However, graphics such as the ones you chose send the message, however subliminal and unintentional, that Sweet Briar graduates marry and have babies, and that career-minded women "need not apply." In today's competitive market, such a message can only be a deterrent. I hope that, in the future, more thought is put into the graphics you choose when creating a publication that speaks for the college as well as its alums.

—Wylie Jameson Small '83

Many thanks for e-mailing your reaction to the graphics used behind the class notes. We hear you! And, having heard, we agree absolutely. We are sure you know that there was no slight intended. But thanks for pointing this out.—ed.

Please pass on to the magazine editor that the new design for the alumnae news pages is offensive to some of us. The pretty background images of diaper pins, engagement rings, and cruise luggage does not strike any sort of relevance for those of us who are using our education and supporting ourselves.

—Dr. Karol A. Lawson '81

Mea culpa. Mea maxima culpa.—ed.

Please tell Ann Whitley

Please let Ann Marshall Whitley know how much I enjoy her Alumnae Magazine articles about Sweet Briar's past. She has a real talent for bringing it to life. There's such a wealth of interesting information in her articles, and her humorous and often lyrical writing style make for pleasurable reading. Her articles capture not only Sweet Briar's history, but the area's social history as well. I save all of her articles and also have copies of the booklets she's written...has Ann ever considered gathering her magazine articles together, organizing them, and publishing them? I wish she would. Please encourage her to keep writing. When she's gone, an historian and an institutional memory will be gone and it will be a great loss. Until then, I want to enjoy her memories and historical research as often as possible.

—Elizabeth Lindsey '86

Ann has considered what you suggest, but first intends to write at least two more booklets; the next one, she tells us, will focus on Daisy.—ed.

Favor to ask

Hi! I love reading through all the SBC pages—they're great! However, I have a favor to ask: could the Book Shop do a page advertising Sweet Briar stuff (clothes, Jefferson cups, etc.), with prices and ordering info? I understand that a catalogue would be prohibitively expensive, but my favorite pair of SBC gym shorts is disintegrating (after 12 years!), and I don't know when I'll be able to shop at SBC...Thanks for thinking about this!

We've passed your plea along!—ed.

Excerpts from letters to Alumnae Association Director Louise Swiecki Zingaro '80 and President Muhlenfeld from Katharine Crommelin Milton '62

It was a thrill to receive the Distinguished Alumna Award for 1998 and to visit the Sweet Briar campus again and see firsthand how dynamic the college is and what a superlative caliber of student is attending it...

Sweet Briar has always been my favorite institution of higher learning and I was pleased to see that in terms of beauty and elegance, the campus was still as lovely as my memories of it. But it is clear as well that you and your associates have kept Sweet Briar on the fast track academically and it is right up there with other first-rate colleges and universities in terms of its approach to learning and preparing students for life in the 21st century. This impression was further strengthened at the [Alumnae Council] meeting Friday night when I heard details of administrative and alumnae reports and plans for the future.

Congratulations

I want to congratulate you on the last issue [Summer/Fall] of the Alumnae Magazine. I thought it was super. Keep up the good work.

—Anna Chao Pai '57

Excited about SBC's plan

Hello from Atlanta! After reading the most recent issue of the Alumnae Magazine I am excited to hear about Sweet Briar's plan for its second century. I am a great proponent of historic preservation and it is something that is quite often taken for granted in this technological age in which we live. Both Dumont's and Harnsberger's comments epitomize the efforts of the administration and staff to preserve the past while enabling Sweet Briar to grow and continue to be the strong women's college that it is! When I read of these things I am most proud to be an alumna...Sweet Briar has been a wonderful place to meet friends and mentors alike. Hola, Hola!

—Karen Hott '91

WOW!

It just about brought tears to my eyes and it most definitely brought a big satisfied smile to my face when I came home and saw my mail on the counter...it was my copy of the Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine!

It was quite an amazing feeling to see that rendition [of the new student center] on the cover and to realize that I was a part of creating it...WOW! Being somewhat distanced from the whole process and the ins and outs of all the happenings (which I do miss very much) has given me a renewed appreciation not just for this plan, but for the well-being of that special place.

I wish I had the money so that we could start building now, but until then I promise to be a dedicated board member and help realize the great potential for Sweet Briar.

—Kindle Samuel '98

(ed. note: Kindle, who was president of the Student Government Association in 1997-98, was elected by her class to serve on SBC's Board of Directors.)

More Magazines!

Was disappointed to hear that SBC has gone down to three Alumnae Magazines a year instead of four. Does this mean the Class Notes will be even more concise (practically encoded!) than they already are? Assume this is a cost-cutting measure. Has anybody considered charging for postage/printing? Or putting out a special appeal? I'd sure be glad to cough up the dough to return you to a four-a-year cycle. Your office has produced an outstanding publication that has been the highlight of my seasons for nearly three decades...Please keep up the good work and treat everyone in the Alum Office to a major pat on the back from this grateful grad!

—Susan P. Scanlan '69

Thanks for the good words. Yes—we have considered asking for voluntary contributions to help with magazine costs, but each time have decided not even to suggest it! We don't think alumnae should have to pay for their magazine. And, although we've moved to three issues, we have increased the size of each issue. About Class Notes: To add to or find more info on classmates, check out the Alumnae Association web site.—ed.

Attention All Alumnae:

Career Services welcomes your expertise! We would love to hear from those willing to serve as career advisors/networking contacts for SBC students. If your organization would consider hosting an Extern or Intern, or consider a permanent placement for a recent graduate, please let us know.

An Externship is a 1-week placement of a junior or senior over Winter Break (program's debut January 4-8, 1999) or Spring Break (March 1-8, 1999). The student will complete an application and be matched with an alumna in a geographic and career area of her choice. During Extern Week, the student will "shadow" her alumna to test a career field and geographic area. This 5-day experience is strictly voluntary; no pay is expected. Externs are responsible for their own housing and transportation (unless the alumna is willing to house a student).

Internships take place in the summer, for a 1-2 month period.

Interested Alumnae: Please contact me via e-mail: jmahanes@sbc.edu; Fax: 804-381-6396; phone: 804-381-6151; or P.O. Box AT, Sweet Briar, VA 24595.

Alumnae Association Board Announces Winners!

Congratulations to the 1998 winners of the Alumnae Association Board Challenge to increase percent of participation in the Alumnae Fund.

The winners are:

the Winston-Salem, NC Alumnae Club
(President Becky Trulove Symons '79) with 68 % participation, and

Region IV (NC & SC)
(Chair Ashley Wilson Brook '79)
with 48% participation.

This program was introduced two years ago to encourage local alumnae clubs and regions to increase annual giving to the Alumnae Fund. The Association Board awards the club with the highest percent participation $1,000 for its endowed scholarship or a scholarship of its choice, and the region $1,000 for the Alumnae Daughter Scholarship.

Kudos to the 1998 winners, and thanks to all who worked to increase their club/regional participation.

For three years, SBC has shown a 43% nationwide participation rate in the Alumnae Fund. Several other women's colleges show percentages as high as 50%; the Association hopes its challenge will move SBC closer to that mark.

Who will win in 1999? Even if your area has no club, your region can win if you help. Please accept the challenge: send your gift today!

Allison M. Kughn Appointed Director of the Annual Fund

Allison Kughn has joined the Development Staff. Former director of annual giving (1997-98) and development assistant, annual giving (1995-97) at the University of Richmond, she brings extensive experience in all phases of annual giving programming. A member of CASE (Council For Advancement And Support Of Education), she is a past recipient of the CASE/Virginia Carter Smith Scholarship for Newcomers to Fundraising, and member of the Virginia Association of Fund Raising Executives.

A 1994 graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, she was an English major and economics/business minor. Hobbies: photography; travel; tennis; French; reading.

Lynn Becker King Becomes Sweet Briar's First Director of Human Resources

Lynn King has joined the staff in a new position. As Director of Human Resources, she will be involved in many developmental projects, including conducting a comprehensive review of salary scales and pay plans; establishing a performance recognition system; designing a training/development program for supervisory personnel; and enhancing student work programs to increase opportunities for experiential learning.

Formerly, she was manager of human resources at the UVA Health Services Foundation (1989-98), maintaining close coordination of clinical departments, physicians, and UVA administration, as well as Foundation departments, subsidaries, and offsite clinics. She also has served as an adjunct faculty member at Piedmont Virginia Community College. Certified as a Senior Professional in Human Resource Management (SPHR) in 1995, Lynn holds a B.A. in English (UVA 1978) and an M.S. in human resource development (American University 1989).

Joanne Mahanes Named Director of Career Services

Joanne Mahanes became Director of Career Services July 1, bringing strong leadership skills and professional experience to the post. Formerly at UVA, she was assistant dean, College of Arts and Sciences and coordinator of career development. Nationally known for her work in career services, she is recognized for her annual Arts and Sciences Alumni Career Forum, a weekend of networking and workshops for UVA alumni and students.

Professional experience prior to UVA includes four years as director of admissions, Florida Atlantic University; associate director of admissions for International Students and Freshmen Recruitment, Hofstra University; adjunct instructor, Division of Continuing Education and Community Services, Broward Community College, FL. She holds a Professional Diploma in Counseling, an M.S. in education, and a B.A. in psychology and sociology from Hofstra, and is certified by the National Board of Certified Counselors.

Joanne lives in Charlottesville with her husband Cliff and their cat.

IN MEMORY

Jovan De Rocco

Jovan De Rocco 1896-1998

We have learned of the April 1998 death of Jovan De Rocco, artist, writer, and former Sweet Briar art professor. He was 101 years old.

Professor De Rocco taught at SBC for 18 years, 1940-1958. His life personified the American dream: born in Belgrave, Serbia, and trained as an architect, he arrived at Ellis Island in 1921. He first worked as a hospital orderly, then found a job with New York architect Lafayette Goldstone. He next joined the office of H. Van Buren Magnogle, famous architect, painter, sculptor, and author; this led to a commission to design the American Embassy building in Tokyo. Later he received a medal of honor from the Yugoslavian government for designing the facade of the Yugoslav Pavilion for 1939's World's Fair. Studying painting and drawing at New York's Art Students League, he won a scholarship to the MacDowell Colony at Peterborough, NH where he met his wife of 53 years, Marcia. In 1976, the De Roccas moved to Sanibel Island, FL where he designed the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Less than a mile from SBC's campus is a home he designed in 1956 for two faculty colleagues, poet and novelist Evelyn Eaton and concert pianist Irén Marik.

Gertrude Prior

Ella Gertrude Prior '29 1905-1998

With great sadness we report the July 17 death of Gertrude (Gert) Prior.

A native of New Brunswick, NJ, and a philosophy major at SBC, she earned a Masters in psychology at the University of Pennsylvania (1934) and returned to the Sweet Briar community, living for many years across from campus on Old Stage Road.

Known and loved by generations of alumnae, Gert served the College in many capacities, working in the Library, the Biology Department, and as assistant to the Farm Manager. She retired in 1970 from the Book Shop staff.

She was also an active volunteer through the years, as a member of the Alumnae Board; class fund agent and secretary; vice president of the Amherst-Nelson Club; and chairman of the Alumnae Fund.

Her many community activities included work with bird clubs, preservation societies, and church groups. An animal lover, Gert was co-founder of the Amherst County Humane Society, donating land for its animal shelter and pet cemetery.

She is survived by two nieces, Lynn Prior Harrington '58 and Kate Prior Everett. Memorials may be made to the Amherst County Humane Society, Amherst, VA 24521.

Ernest Kirrmann

Dr. Ernest N. Kirrmann

Dr. Ernest Nestor Kirrmann, a member of Sweet Briar's faculty from 1954-1970, died of heart failure February 9, 1998.

He began as Visiting Lecturer in German, was named Associate Professor in 1955, and Professor in 1964. Alsatian by birth, he was schooled in Strasbourg before coming to the U.S. in 1924. Graduating from the College of the City of New York (B.S. 1930), he returned to Strasbourg to study at the University, then taught German and French at the Northfield Schools in Massachusetts and earned an M.A. (Columbia University 1933) and Ph.D. (Northeastern University 1946). In 1953-54 he was a Fulbright Exchange Teacher in West Berlin, in one of the first groups of U. S. teachers sent to Germany after WWII.

Besides many Sweet Briar faculty committees, he served the Lynchburg area as interpreter to German families before the U.S. Immigration hearings, and in 1965 was president of the Virginia Chapter of Teachers of German. Attributing his longevity to a rigorous swimming regimen, he celebrated his 85th birthday by swimming his 1,000th mile. Devoted to Sweet Briar and interested in all campus activities, he is missed by the entire community.

Loren Oliver

Loren Oliver 1927-1998

Professor Emeritus Loren Oliver died at his home September 22, after a long illness.

Born in Mt. Carmel, IL, he grew up in Indianapolis. After high school, he worked in the Accounting Department of General Motors and took night classes at John Herron Art Institute, later becoming a full-time student on a full, five-year scholarship while working nights at G.M. He earned a B.F.A. in 1954 and received the Outstanding Senior Mary Miliken Award for six months travel in Europe, then studied with such luminaries as Mark Rothko, George Riky and Clifford Still, earning a Masters from Tulane.

For 34 years in the SBC Studio Art Department, Professor Oliver inspired generations of students and tripled the teaching staff.

Continuing his own work, he won numerous prizes in regional, national, and international exhibitions during an extensive career which culminated in 1993 with a retrospective exhibition at SBC's Pannell Gallery.

The 1963 Briar Patch, dedicated to him, gives "Thanks for innumerable things...for demanding and respecting the best in us...for an intuitive wisdom...for a unison of sensitivity and sensibility...for awakening our curiosity."

He is survived by his wife of 35 years, Mary Jane Schroder Oliver '62 and son, Jasper Alexander Oliver II, of Winchester, VA. The family asks those wishing to send memorials to consider The Friends of Art.

CLASS NOTES

Secretary: Elizabeth Williams Gilmore

For the class of 1930, this year's mail has carried new notes. Josephine Reid Stubbs wrote, from Kansas, telling of a family party for her 90th birthday. Jo keeps in touch with Serena Ailes Stevens, in Michigan, by telephone, and Serena active as usual, has rung in at 91. It's 90, now, for most of us, including your secretary (Baltimore, MD), Scoutie Gorsline (Richmond, VA) and Sally Reahard (Indianapolis, IN). Sally wanted to know the number of survivors of '30. We are 46, still here. Sally continues to be involved in many national and charitable projects—mainly environmental and preservationist. Gladys Wester Horton's sight has continued to deteriorate, but that does not keep her from traveling with her daughter. Next trip—South America. Francie Harrison McGiffert (Duluth, MN) still lives alone in her big house, but manages well. She recalls "lovely, long-ago days at Sweet Briar, living in a charmed age in spite of war and depression." Elizabeth Carnes met President Muhlenfeld in Tampa, FL—enjoyed hearing about the changing trends in education. Wilhelmina Rankin Teter belongs to a poetry group in Orlando, FL, and does a lot of violin playing. That's different!

Your secretary did not hear from some "Regulars": they were probably on the golf course, at birthday festivities, or on a cruise ship. Full Speed Ahead!

President: Mary Virginia Camp Smith

Secretary: Katharine Niles Parker
Fund Agent: Margaret Smith Thomasson

Elizabeth Pinkerton Scott is still living at Bundoren Farm. No longer does much traveling but works in her garden. Liz Morton Forsyth runs an early nursery school for children in her hometown of Lynchburg. Margaret Smith Thomasson has two great-grandchildren and she and her husband still operate the store in Lynchburg and she bikes on the Appalachian Trail. Mary Virginia Camp travels and keeps in touch with her grandchildren who are all good students. Harel Lacey is the daughter of Elizabeth Chapman Lacey who operates the furniture store that her mother and father opened in Hopedale, MA. The 5/3/98 Roanoke Times had a nice picture of and article about Betty Cocke Winfree who was given the Garden Club of America's Achievement Medal for her work in establishing the Mill Mountain Park Wildflower Garden more than 20 years ago. Peggy Huxley Dick is still traveling: the American West, Cape Cod, New Zealand (her 6th trip!) and plans for a 10/98 China cruise. She is glad to have her son and daughter nearby. Polly Rich Ewing moved to a retirement residence in Denver near her brother and John's daughter and family. She takes genealogical trips to England, Boston, and Salt Lake City. Margaret Densmore Whitney also works on genealogy and edits family letters. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Parker have eight great-grandchildren, all girls except one.

President: Lucy Gordan Jeffers

Vice President: Jean McKenney Stoddard

Secretary: Anne Benedict Swain
Fund Agent: Jean Oliver Sartor

Our class has lost four members since the last edition of the Sweet Briar News. Mary Treadway Downs died 6/3/98, Mary Louise Saul Hunt died 5/29/98, Gertrude Robertson Midlen died 5/8/98, and Betty Shuford Pagenkopf died—date unknown. Yvonne Leggett Sanford told me that Tredy and Fritz had just moved from the house they had lived in for many years to a small and cozy spot when it was discovered that she had lung cancer.

Yvonne and Gordon attended his 65th reunion at Yale. Her children are fine—Chip has a business in Mendham, NJ and one of his sisters works for him—Diana I believe. Susie lives in New York. Janet Thorpe is busy, but it's the old routine of classes (both exercise and French) and volunteer work. She wishes she could report some dazzling trips!

Henri Minor Hart's whole family is going to Miami for the oldest grandson's wedding. She has cute grandchildren, some nearby. Sadly another year has passed without their fun-filled reunion with Gracey Luckett Bradley, Lillian Neely Willis, Lottie Lewis Woollen and Henri, but they plan to get together in Fall '98. They better come to our 60th in Spring '99. Ellie (Connie) Wallace Price is fine after a cataract operation. I'm sure lots of us have been down that road. Helen Cary Stewart is living with her son Cary at 7377 West 85th St., Los Angeles, CA 90045-2456. Kay Bonsall Strong is already thinking of going to our 60th reunion in Spring '99. Good for you Kay—that's the way we should all be planning. Ellie George Frampton is thrilled that elder daughter Anne and her husband and son and daughter have moved to a farm 2 miles away in Keswick, VA. Daughter Richie in West Newton, MA is coming for a visit after daughter Amy graduates from h.s.; she's going to Berkeley. Dutch Hauber Crowe loves living in Newark, DE, as all of her old friends returned there. They have a great time with bridge and Country Club. She sees her children often—Terry in New Jersey and Patty in Columbia, MD. Claffy Claffin Williams says her monotype printing is an exciting new adventure. She is still showing paintings—at Maine Coast Artists; Rockport, ME; at Boston Atheneum; a group show at South Shore Art Festival; and at Chinese Culture Institute. And with all that she takes care of her husband and at times one of 11 grandchildren. Jeff Weller Pearson enjoys life at Westminster Canterbury of the Valley in Winchester, VA. The only other Briarite there is Jo Sutton '38. Jeff says the surroundings are beautiful, people nice, and the staff efficient, pleasant and helpful. (I could say all those nice things about our Retirement Community.) Best of all are the frequent visits from children and grandchildren, and she visits daughter Sally in Luray. Gussie Saul Farrier lunched with Sarah Belk Gambrell in Charlotte and Sarah reminded her that our 60th reunion will be in Spring '99. Gussie was in Princeton for grandson Jack Edwards' graduation, and had dinner with Jane Lewis Kingsbury who was visiting there. Jane is moving to Albany to be near a daughter. Son Dr. R. Thomas Edwards and Ebbie '64 have two lovely granddaughters. Gussie's sister Mary Lou Saul Hunt '35 died 5/29 after a long illness—Alzheimer's. Betty Barnes Bird continues to search for geologic samples in spite of eye problems, takes dance lessons and went rafting on the Colorado River. Betty wishes her interest in geology had blossomed earlier when she was traveling around the world with her late husband, William. No rock hunting in summer in AZ. She swims and tries to keep cool, and listens to Talking Books. Lucy Gordan Jeffers hopes we'll have a good turnout for our reunion. She says if anyone has ideas of how we should celebrate, please pass them on either to the Alumnae Office at College or to Lucy at 40 East 88th St., Apt 9F, NY, NY 10128. She plans an Oct. trip to England with the American Friends of The Georgian group. Julie Saunders Michaux sounds pleased to be in the same house doing the same things. She's still busy with her church, the Sheltering Arms Hospital, and Garden Club. And Julie is another who is counting on going to the 60th! Ann Park says her spelling is getting worse, to say nothing of her hearing. Ann keeps in touch with Lucy Gordan Jeffers and Katherine Richards Delancey. Lillian Neely Willis and Peter sold their home in Waynesboro, GA, and moved into a retirement cottage at Brandon Wilde in Evans, GA. J. O. Oliver Sartor had numerous TIA's (small strokes) and has to take medicine. Still, she's planning to come to our 60th! Sarah Tams Kreker joined the SBC 50th anniversary trip commemorating the Junior Year in France. For her it was a 60th anniversary ('37-'38) They were treated royally and enjoyed reliving her youth at Tours in the Chateau Region and in Paris. Lee Montague Watts also joined the group. Julia Ridgely Howe enjoys life in a retirement community in Whitefield, NH. She does pool exercises and still writes her weekly column in the Coos County Democrat. Ned and I enjoy our retirement spot only 20 minutes from Ted and his family. His wife Ruth and the boys, Ned (16) and Bob (13) spent 5 1/2 weeks in Italy, Munich, Paris, southern England, and Scotland. Ted flew over for the segment in Paris and southern England. So we enjoyed the trip vicariously through postcards and phone calls. Speaking of trips, let's all plan to go to our 60th reunion. Dates are: May 7-9, 1999. Our one sad event of the year was the death of my sister Carol 11/97. That was hard, especially since we lost our brothers five and eight years ago.

President: Ann Morrison Reams
Secretary: Douglas Woods Sprunt
Fund Agent: Florence Bagley Witt

The following cards should get you out of your rocking chairs! Margaret Leonard Proctor writes from Baltimore, "Journeyed up the headwaters of the Amazon in February and thence to Machu Pichu. On to Naples, FL for a haircut en route to a grandson's wedding in Toronto. Plus painting, church work, book and garden clubs." Daphne Withington Adams: "Still in my house in Rye, trying to keep it and the garden in good shape in spite of poor knees. Am showing weekly films at the local retirement home, manning the reception desk at the Presbyterian Church, exercises in water classes at the "Y", Church Hand Bell Choir. Nancy Davis Reynolds is in her house in Asheville, now a widow, but friends and family nearby. "I have been taking courses in the College for Seniors at UNCA, went to France with the group in June. Bridge, book clubs, working in the hospital... a class on Dante's inferno. Also from Asheville. Ruth Hensley Camblos writes: "Josh taught a class at UNCA College for Seniors in Ornithology with field trips. In May we drove to UVA for his Med Class Reunion, with an overnight stop at beautiful SBC. I took my May Queen dress to the SB Museum. Ann Whitley said there is a big interest in May Day, and that they still have the 1907 May Pole." In Charlottesville they saw Betsy and Mike Tremain, and in Asheville, Emory Gill Williams and Canky. In June the Tremains, Gege and Bill Hall. Sudie and Bill Hanger, Betty Lippincott, Martha Buchanan Wadsworth, Ann and Tom Potterfield and Helen Sanford had a great reunion in Annapolis. The Potterfields were just back from France and Helen from England and France. Debbie Wood Davis is full time in real estate and always busy with art history courses. I spent a few days with her in NY in March and we had lunch with Cynthia Abbott Dougherty. Afterwards crossed the street to see The Merchant's House 29 E, Fourth St., a very interesting 1832 museum whose curator is our Margaret Kelly's daughter. It was lovely to see the bond she and Cynthia have. Barbara Bull Peake is in Europe trying to connect with her son who is in Bosnia with the Red Cross. Cynthia describes her summers in Quogue, Long Island as "like the picture of the author inside the cover, (she) lives quietly in the country with her cat and roses." Mary Alice Bennett Baumberger at home in Geneva in July—freezing, snowy peaks etc. Marion Robbins Alexander has been in Portugal and Spain where she saw Frances Gregg Petermeyer; and in Linville NC, where she saw Alice Williams Glover. Sweet Briar's Junior Year in France 50th Anniversary Trip was superb. QE2/Tours/Paris, I couldn't resist. We were overwhelmed and so proud of the college and the wide acclaim given this program. Magically all doors opened to us—private homes and galleries and official splendor. In the Calamity Department, Diana Green Helfrich of Vineyard Haven, ME wins the gold medal as a good sport, with lessons for us all. "Managed to total 3 cars in one week and lost my license too! The therapy after my second knee surgery did not do well—the reason why my foot stuck on the accelerator and the accident followed". She works part time "at the Bookstore" and has interesting descendants, one at the Goddard Space Center. Barbara Ripley Furniss writes, "Todd and I are just back from his reunion at Phillips Andover-Abbott. Diana was in charge of the Abbott group and carrying on bravely in spite of severe facial bruises from a car accident. After reunion we had a visit with Jeanne Sawyer Stanwood in her lovely Kennebunk home." And then a card from Jeanne saying what fun it was and sending her love. This job of mine isn't all bad! Happy Retirement News begins with our freshman year twins Betty Brown Borden and Dick and Mary Brown Griggs and Bayliss. After careers taking them all over the world, they are together in Santa Barbara at Casa Dorinda. (Mary Law's husband, Stuart Taylor, now a widower, also lives there. I see him occasionally as his journalist son and family live near me.) Ginny Thayer Boothby is in a condo in Greenbrae CA next to Betsy Chamberlain! Margaret Preston Moore sends love from Tallahassee, FL, where she has settled to be near her daughter and her family. Jane Taylor Lowell writes: "I'm hale and hearty in (Cape Coral) Florida. Swim everyday, volunteer and church work. Enjoy the news and how SB is growing and changing." Ruth Jacquot Tempest sounds very happy in Pensacola in a new apartment 2 miles from her old house. Off to CO this summer. There is sad news that Elizabeth Dunn has died. Margie Troutman Harbin's husband Tom died 8/30. Our condolences to our Senior year President, Laura Graves Howell and Gordon are still in Lynchburg with their garden and his beautiful camellias, often see Ann and Bernie Reams. Our eternal President Reams continues her good works, plays a little bridge and Mah Jong, keeps up with family, especially her mother, who is in her own apartment at 101. Our fund raising heroine Flossie says she and Raymond are still enjoying their house and life in the slow lane in Chattanooga. She reminds us how valuable each contribution is to SB. In Alexandria, Marion Mundy Young works for the church and historic preservation; her husband "builds antiques for their grandchildren." Edie Brainerd Walter and George are perking along. She is the historian for the famous Washington Club on Dupont Circle and wrote their 100th Anniversary Book. Ginnie Wilkinson Swanson was Effingham IL's Citizen of the Year for civic work, the first woman so honored. Stony Moore Rutherford was wrestling with selling her house. Cheery Lucy Case Wendelkin is recovering from a broken hip, (I'm afraid, it's hard to read) says "Kansas is still Kansas". Bobbie Engh Croft and Croswell are fine. He is running his business and they "play in WY every summer." Anne Bundy Lewis and her husband in Petersburg, are happy grandparents. Dotty Hutchings Donley writes: "Plugging along. Have sold 6 novels and 2 novelettes so far." Blessings on every grandparent and grandchild, especially ours...all 900 of them. I hate to disappoint you but there is no earthly way to list them, except Diana Stout Allen and Richard's grandson John Jennings, a lawyer in Memphis who is engaged to Leslie Brock, a Sweet Briar graduate! Let's try something different in the 1999 letter. How about writing specific memories of SB. In four years the Depression ended and WWII circled the globe. We are curiosities of the distant past, walking around in our tennis shoes. Let's collect some of the pieces of the world we shared in those years.

President: Mary Haskins King
Secretary: Jodie Morgan Hartman
Fund Agent: Anna Mary Chidester Heywood

Ginny Decker Dudley, who still lives in Albuquerque, NM, is coming east for a visit when her youngest son retires from the Air Force. She and Nick are celebrating their 50th Anniversary and plan a trip to HI in Nov. Helen Davis Wohlers is still hiking three times a week. She will go on an Elderhostel hiking trip in Oct. to Italy and Austria. She is busy with the Brevard Music Center and with the building of a new library there. Jim and I were visiting at Grandfather Mountain, NC in July and as I was coming out of church in Linville, I got this big hug from Mary Kathryn Frye Hemphill. I had a long chat with her and Saul. I later learned that Lella Burnett Felker had been in church that same day—I called Lella and enjoyed catching up. Edie Page Gill Breakall ran into several classmates at the annual meeting of the Garden Club of America in April at Williamsburg, VA. Sadie Gwin Allen Blackburn and Dale Saylor Morgan were both there. She also saw Lile Tucker Bell in Lexington, VA at a Lily Flower Show. Edie Page still keeps up with her music and plays in a piano group in Roanoke.

I had a note from Tutti Hall Peckham thanking all of you for your love and concern these past few months. Mary Haskins King went to Asheville, NC to spend the night with Tutti. Mary then visited in Chattanooga, TN with Hilda Hude Chapin, Sarah Temple Moore and Betty Avery Duff. She just missed seeing Mil Carothers Healy who lives in Ponte Vedra, FL. Hilda Hude Chapin and Ed had recently visited with Wyline Chapman Saylor and Henry in St. Petersburg, FL. Harriet Hazen Harnack lives in Boulder City, NV—near Las Vegas. She has been to several Elderhostels and plans a fall cruise to the Panama Canal. Elaine Krause Anderson has been on several cruises. She still says "Arizona is great in the winter."

Joyce Livermore Foust's granddaughter is a member of the U. of Michigan crew team. She and Fred are planning to take their 1925 Packard on tour in S. Indiana this fall. Steve Nicolson McIlvaine was sailing "with El Nino" in the Pacific this spring. Her daughter left the Forestry Project in Rwanda and Tanzania and is back in Kenya. One son is an architect in L.A. and the other son has been transferred back to Washington, DC from #2 post in the Embassy in Zambia. Cappy Price Bass and Bruce were in Paris in June and cruised around the British Isles. Jean Ridler Fahrenbach went to the Canadian Rockies. This fall she plans a trip to Thailand, Nepal and India. She attended an Elderhostel in Philadelphia, PA at the Barnes Foundation. She says her SBC courses have given her a great background for her travels.

Perk Traugott Brown had a wonderful Elderhostel experience in Vienna, Salzburg and a cruise on the Danube. She went to Canada in July. Betty Healy Downing and Tom plan a trip to VT and ME this summer. They recently had a visit from Harriet Willcox Gearheart. Harriet and David had a big family reunion in Baltimore, MD last May with all children and grandchildren. The Gearharts go to their cottage in Bethany Beach, DE off and on in the summer and they had a good visit with Julie Mills Jacobsen who also spends the summer there. Harriet had good chats with Zu Zulich Reuter and Diddy Gaylord Thompson. I have appreciated hearing from Leila Barnes Cheatham, Martha Holton Glesser and Sarah Temple Moore—all is well with them. Dale Saylor Morgan has been traveling often this spring as she is a Flower Show judge. She hopes that any of us going thru Savannah, GA will call her. She will be glad to take us on a tour of "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil" (she may regret that). Mary Haskins King, "our leader," asked me to remind you that the year 2000 will be our 55th reunion so start making plans.

1948

President: Eleanor (Pottsie) Potts Snodgrass
Secretary: Maddin Lupton McCallie
Fund Agents: Elvira Whitehead Morse, Helen Elliott Sockwell, Audrey Lahman Rosselot

This letter is being written after our Glorious 50. Our class should feel in closer touch than we have in years! Forty-two of us returned with 18 spouses and lots of conversation and communication has taken place. All of your response cards saluted the gathering especially the work done by Pottsie and her committee. The highlight was our absolutely overwhelming Class Gift of $285,925 under the leadership of Martha Mansfield Clement, Peggy Sheffield Martin, and Peggy Addington Twohy. We did not know the huge success of our campaign until the night before it was announced. We also learned that the children of several deceased classmates—Connie Tunnell Bond, Caroline Rankin Mapother, and Ann Samford Upchurch—wanted to contribute. We sang with such enthusiasm and volume under our special song leader Harriette Bland Beckwith that you could almost see "the golden stairs"! Wayne Stokes Goodall and your scribe worked on pink and green ribbons which we wore around our necks centered with a large button with our yearbook picture that our President Pottsie had made. Then after all her noble efforts she missed being in our class picture. We missed these classmates too— Marjorie Smith Smithey, Harriotte Bland Beckwith and Peggy Addington Twohy who left early.

Cards in my summer mail ... Dolly Antrim McKenna and Jim are busy volunteers in Yorba Linda, CA helping sr. citizens with tax forms, working on a quilt show and cataloging scrapbooks for the Heritage Museum. Their daughter Doll is running for her 4th term in the CT state assembly. Promoting the sale of her book and video From Bach To Rock takes Rosemary Gugert Kennedy from New Orleans to VT, Boston and the Brevard NC Music Festival. Ann Rowland Tuck and Jim celebrated their 50th anniversary in China with a visit to air bases where he was stationed. Betsy Anderson Gorell from Albans, WV was welcomed on her first visit back to the campus. As the years roll along we report more ailments so we send our thoughts and encouragement to these friends.. Jane Gray Starck, Betty Warner Keith, and Bess White Gregory. Kitty Doolin Dickey is upbeat in spite of complications from an automobile accident. Liz Bramham Lee has difficulties in walking but is having aquatic exercises to get back on the travel circuit. Closey Faulkner Dickey did not make reunion because of health problems but her note is full of usual wide ranging plans. Jenny Belle Bechtel Whyte and William are a bit slowed down but no less tuned in and interested in their friends' activities. Wayne Stokes Goodall says Jenny Belle might even write a book of SBC happenings if anyone is interested. We think of Jenny Belle's lacy, be-ribboned petticoats whenever we see Patty Traugott Rouse wearing one of those elegant Museum Creations which she created. Although we did not hear from Martha Rowan Hyder many saw her fabulous home in San Miguel, Mexico on the cover of the May-June issue of Southern Accents. Frances "Robby" Rohb retired from the national office of PBK and lives in her parents' home in Williamsburg. Lyn Irvine Forbes writes from Ridgefield, CT that her husband Wendell has retired as publisher of Guideposts. Westray Boyce Nicholas and Roy are selling their house at John's Island, SC and moving to Palm Desert, CA to be near their son who works at Manhattan Beach (and we are sure they will spend more time with good friends Jane Miller Wright and Howard.) The Wrights plan to sail to Machu Pichu and the west coast of S. America. Jane writes of the "rosy glow of pride" she felt after Reunion.

From cards and scrapbooks ... Liz Barbour McCrea met Mac 23 years ago when they both worked in Australia. Her mother is still alive at 102. Judy Blakey Butler still effervescent as ever though she has lost two husbands, has memories of her travels. Meon Bower Harrison and Arch feel most blessed about their life and their children. They have grandchildren who win ribbons for their Nubian goats at the county fair in NH. Vi Whitehead Morse beat the birds to her sour cherry tree so she could make jam, pies, and frozen foods. Marjorie "Smitie" Smith Smithey (whee!) reported her one day back seeing former camp and college friends was a wonderful experience. Martha Davis Barnes felt at reunion "that we personified Frances Weaver's book title The Girls With Grandmother Faces—a lively busy bunch of ladies". Betsy Plunkett Williams captioned a photo with, "How fresh-faced we were 54 years ago—the lines reflect the passage of time, but the hope and the confidence in the future remain". Vickie Brock Badrow persuaded her Ned to take time from volunteering at home and he loved being at the reunion. Can you believe that our Evy Sharp Vidal is finishing up her second term as president of the Rotary Club of Mauricetown, NJ? Mayde Luddington Henningsen has strong ties with a graduate daughter and husband Walter's years of service as a member of SB's Board of Trustees. Liz Graves Perkinson has a daughter who graduated exactly 30 years after she did. Marguerite Rucker Ellett declared her stay in a dorm for first time in 50 years was great fun! Twink Elliott Sockwell and Warren brought their own Mardi Gras masques from Huntsville for the Saturday evening party. Ann Orr Savage says they enjoy retirement with 6 months in Ft. Myers and 6 in VT. Betty Ann Jackson Ryan has two sets of twins among her 16 grandchildren (and her cousin Felicia Jackson Burns has triplet grandsons). Jackie is involved with a cooperative nursery school at her church and with an environmental agency. Nancy Vaughn Kelly and Dan's befriending two Cambodian refugee students in their home in 1986 led to the starting of the Kelly Foundation. It has nurtured some 75 young people from minority groups. For more information about Nancy's work, write The Kelly Foundation, 6514 Potomac Ave., A-1, Alexandria VA 22307. Audrey Lahman Rosselot was leaving on another foreign trip after reunion. Suzanne Hardy Benson and Cam celebrated their 7th anniversary after reunion and she plans to enroll at Augusta State Univ. Jo Neal Peregrine writes of a new granddaughter born during reunion, another one due in Nov. and one entering law school. Judy Perkins Llewellyn had plans for travel in Greece and S. America. Harriotte Bland Beckwith and Al had to hop in their plane and fly away ahead of predicted storms so we did not get to really share the touching song and poems our gifted song leader had written for us to sing.

Patty Damron Joy from La Jolla, CA (May to Oct.) and Alexandria (Nov. to May) writes of the loss of her only sister in a terrible fire. Our thoughts and sympathy do go to her. Avery Draughon has lived in Tempe, AZ for the 36 years that she has been a widow: she has a daughter, two granddaughters, a sister and two aunts so is using her "single-sex education". Ileana Garcia Carr's husband Leonard writes that her book on her family's role in Puerto Rican history has been published in Spanish in Mayaguez. Eve Godchaux Hirsch from New Orleans reports that she is "healthy, happy, and active in my community". Liz Hooks Richards after years as a volunteer lists her current biggest challenge is "on the golf course in Key Largo". Bess Pratt Wallace successfully battled a brain tumor and now reports "Life's challenges are smaller in scale but still satisfying". Our Little Rock classmates: Phil Thorpe Miller says Buddy and she have a nice life with lots of baby-sitting and a summer trip to Washington and Lee to take a course and a possible quick trip over the hills to the Patch. Nancy Moses Eubanks writes of her four "joyful, happy years"; and mentions that she had two sisters at SBC class of '34 and '41 who are now deceased. Sally Smith Williams spent time at their cottage on Gwynn's Island in the Chesapeake Bay. The Williams will cruise the Mediterranean this fall.

Pam Terry from DC had planned to come to reunion until her granddaughter announced the impending arrival of Pam's first great grandchild in Houston. Pam rescues and rehabilitates abandoned animals in Rock Creek Park and finds homes for them. She translated a second book from Spanish to English and plans to write one of her own. She spends time in Dallas and would love to contact SBC friends there. Closey Faulkner Dickey enjoyed a visit to her old haunts in VA and a summer sail exploring Lake Superior. Pottsie reports on her son's wedding in Aug. in DC after a post-reunion trip to the Canadian Rockies and AK! Maddin Lupton McCallie and David, their 3 sons, spouses and friends plan a fall bicycle tour in Provence and your scribe is trying to re-learn how to ride a bicycle with 21 gears and hand brakes!

Our hearts were heavy when we realized how many classmates have died recently. I sent the program from the Memorial Service held in our beautiful Chapel and have been thanked by the families of Ann Harris Bellows, Ann Paxson Gail, Sylvia Schively Robertshaw and Kax Berthier McKelway. We understand that John McKelway has died too. Our thoughts have gone out to roommates Ginny Wurzbach Vardy, Bea Backer Simpson, Jan Shoesmith as well as to the families. Many of you mention returning for our 55th in 2003. May we suggest you "do lunch" with nearby classmates, have regional "mini" reunions and keep fit as you think ahead to 2003! Cheers!

Toddy Barton: It is very sad to advise of the deaths of two classmates: Judy Clippinger Chavchavadze and Etta Craig Dick Shurley. Our deepest condolences to their families. Heartfelt sympathy also to Diana Weeks Berry, whose husband Henry died and to Peg Seaman Pinkos on the loss of her husband George.

Best wishes to Kae Fretz who became a bride again three years ago. I have postponed seeking gainful employment, while taking care of some health problems. I am patched up now, and really enjoying my new home. Carolyn Sample Abshire: All is well in Old Town, Alexandria where we've lived in "This old house" for 30 years now! Three of our 5 children are making us grandparents. Phyllis, the 30-year-old, is a widow and Caroline is 25. David still running CSIS, a think tank in DC, and I'm retired (finally) from retail and do a lot of volunteering. Nancy Pesek Rasenberger is still a close friend and the classmate I see most. Dianne Aubineau: Off to Paris again, for 4 weeks of classes in painting at Beaux Arts. Still active in the San Francisco Junior League and went to the 50th reunion of the New Trier last fall. Mona Wilson Beard: Georgia and I have been playing with her SB photos. How lucky we have been for half a century to have such friendships! As a retired person I discovered there is a direct, but inverse, relationship between money (a job) and free time. Diana Weeks Berry: My Freshman year roommate Judy Clippinger Chavchavadze passed away last fall. She left two children, and devoted a lifelong career to aiding political prisoners and refugees. My husband Henry died 7/96. Daughter Wendy Briggs and husband Walter and 3 children live in Arrowsic, ME, son Hal and Marion Berry and 3 children returned from Singapore to South Hamilton, MA. Daughter Diana, singer and songwriter in NY. Jean Randolph Bruns: Winter included a visit in Walnut Creek CA with Julie Micou and Dick Eastwood and a reunion with Ruth Clarkson Costello and with Dick and Patty Lynas Ford, then on to Chiang Mai, Thailand for my 7th Christmas with the family there. I also visited Carol Rolston Toulmin. I'll return to Thailand for this Christmas. My old house made demands this year. My St. Anne's/Charlottesville classmates go to Deer Isle, Maine, in Sept. Otherwise it's B&B operation and reading and wedding. Ruth Clarkson Costello: Had to pass on summer camp this year. Too many distractions. Am now facing a future without cheese or curry or Haagen-Dazs, not to mention Merlot and Martinis. Life seems indeed bland. Janet Broman Dingle: My sister Joan Wright

(SBC '56) and I are flying to San Francisco to "Do the Town" while our husbands fish in Canada. We four also are taking an Alaskan Cruise. Have been to 2 college graduations, (Larry's twin grandchildren). Barbara Birt Dow: Saw Annie Moo at her charming Spanish "casa" in Florida. Celebrated with Joan (Davis) and Andy Warren their 45th anniversary 6/20. En route now to our summer cottage in Mass. Then to meet friends on their boat in Canada. Aug. is grandchildren's (7 of them) month at the seaside.

Julie Micou Eastwood: I'm off to Newfoundland, and Nova Scotia for a birding trip and Dick and I go to China in Oct. We love the retirement community, Rossmoor, where we live and swim every day of the year. Mary Jane Eriksen Ertman:

Having fun with Lily our sweet new golden retriever puppy. In July we plan to drive to Denver to visit Anne and Martha and their families. Mary Pease Fleming: Had dinner with Anne Mountcastle

Gamble, who was visiting her brother Frank in Richmond. Anne Sheldon Taylor was here, too, though she's leaving to visit England where her son and grandchildren live. Anne Gamble is leaving to visit her grandchildren in Paris! Rivo and I are not so continental, but try to keep up with 15 grandbabies! Patty Lynas

Ford: Working in the garden as well as entertaining family and friends. Am still doing volunteer work at the Healdsburg Animal Shelter and was named Volunteer of the Year for the Shelter. We had a wonderful two weeks in England. Jo Williams Fraser: April found us in Japan at Cherry Blossom time. We hope it was the Omega of Bob's speaking tours! We had a fun visit from Margie Works Gibbs and her husband. Carla de Creny Freed:

I'm off to France for the SBC 50th reunion of Junior year in France. Then I'll be back in Nantucket 'til mid-January! Kae Fretz: It seems funny-odd to share news of myself after all these years. I was at SBC only my freshman year. I graduated from the Univ. of Delaware '51, BS in education. Got an MA in 1985. I'm a retired teacher, have 5 children and 8 grandchildren and married again in 1995. I now live in VT. Love hearing about you all. Sue Lockley Glad: Had an interesting (and strenuous) trip to Turkey and leave in two days for Ned's 50th reunion of his law school class at Michigan. We will spend the summer at our home at Black Butte Ranch in OR. Lynne McCullough Gush: Have become a rabid environmentalist regarding the wild lands behind our house. A local political fool has decided to pave the bayou, destroy the trees, and remove the brush. This will not happen, I think. Susan Ostrander

Hood: We had a mini-family reunion in Seattle and on the Olympic Peninsula with our 2 daughters and families. Lloyd is still working and had his annual convention in Milwaukee, with a side trip to Ravinia accompanied by Toddy Barton and Wizzo. Son David and family came to Chicago to recover from primary election victory in Georgetown. Susan Taylor

Hubbard: Had a great reunion with Terry in June. (She was in Virginia Beach for a family wedding.) I'm expecting a second grandchild in Aug. My daughter Jane, in Richmond, is the mother-to-be. (She already has a two year old.) I see Ashby often, also Marie now and then. Georgia Dreisbach Kegley: Mona, Will, Jack and I had fun looking through a box of pictures I took at SBC. Hope to get Kathie Phinizy back this summer. We enjoyed her visit here and again at her summer house back in the mountains. You are always welcome here. Beard and Kegley's B&Bs. Joan Hess Michel: I have been retired two years. My biggest news: My daughter was married 6/97 and they made me a grandma 6/98. My son Christopher and wife (both chefs and graduates of the Culinary Institute of America) will be General Manager and Executive Chef of a new restaurant in Lexington, Kentucky named "Emmetts." I'm still doing some editing on a new magazine Spirituality and Health. I hear from Mona Wilson who comes to visit her mother on L.I. now and then. Jane Moorefield: I'm enjoying retirement more all the time, it's lovely to be able to do all the things I couldn't do while working. I've been spending Christmas in Orlando with my nephew the last few years and usually have a nice chat with Sue Taylor Lilly while I'm there. Ann Mountcastle Gamble: Luncheon in Sarasota to meet our president. Visits with Barbie and Bill Dow, Patty and Dick Friese, Mary and Rives Fleming and Ann Taylor in Richmond. Laying plans for Reunion! Everyone must think about saving the date 2001. Ruth Magee Peterson: Status quo here, took a docent trip to Baltimore and DC. Will go to Seattle for the annual docent convention. Terry Faulkner Phillips: Still enjoying living in the Northeast Kingdom. Wes and I are going to Virginia Beach for a family wedding in June. Charley, Gwyn and Sophia Phillips will be there too. We can hardly wait to see our CA children and grandchild! Peg Seaman Pinkos: My husband, George, died recently after 3 1/2 years in a nursing home. I'm still at my local senior center. I spend as much time as possible at my computer, programming in Foxpro. The atmosphere keeps me feeling young! Anne Sinsheimer: Went to Greece and Turkey with Arie Witke SBC'46. Got sick during the trip (probably a virus) and recuperated in Frankfurt with Norbert and Mira Baukus. (Norbert lived with my brother Warren and Marion as an exchange student, 1963-64). Nedra Greer Stimpson: We are expecting our 14th grandchild in Sept.; our oldest grandchild is just ten! Our younger child, John, will marry in the fall in McLean, Virginia. We are thrilled! That will be all 5 children married. Pinkie Barringer Wornham: Oct. '97 took us to SE Asia for three weeks: Hong Kong, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam. I am still Director of Admissions at Bishops School, but only part time next year. Kids are all gainfully employed, six grandchildren, smart and adorable. Tom and I still "Best Buddies" after 47 years.

President: Mary Jane Roos Fenn
Secretary: Bruce Watts Krucke
Fund Agent: Faith Rahmer Croker

The countdown has begun for our big 45th reunion, May 7-9, 1999.

Our condolences to Mary Jane Roos and Dick Fenn whose oldest daughter, Pamela, succumbed to cancer last Sept. Her husband and 5-year old twin sons live at Virginia Beach, not far from the Fenns in Williamsburg. We're also saddened by the death of Jane Henley's husband, Kenyon. Jane has moved to Fayetteville, NC, to be near the grands. We send our sympathy too to Bev Bragg whose husband, Bill, died 11/97. They took wonderful trips to Ireland and France before he died. She's now writing a history of her husband for the grandchildren. She mentioned that she sees Jan O'Neal.

"B.B." Smith Stamats' garden landscaping business is 10 years old. In addition to designing and installing she lectures on container gardening and pruning, and teaches for the New York Botanical Garden Arboretum. She is studying Italian for a trip with David and friends to Tuscany. The youngest of her 5 grandchildren was born at home! Mary Lee McGinnis and Frank McClain spent a month in a castle in Italy with all 3 daughters and the granddaughter and also went to Provence. They are building a house on Wadmalaw Island, a lovely community on the water here. Joy Bennett Hartshorn researches historical properties for the Willistown Historical Commission and is still (25 years) a guide at Winterthur Museum. She also volunteers for the Chester County Historical Society Antique Show and the Philadelphia Flower Show. She divides free time among 6 grandchildren and sailing with Danny in the Chesapeake on the "Owl". Ruthie Frye and Hugo Deaton spent July and Aug. in ME aboard their "Salty Mistress". Their youngest lives in China and they all visited last year.

Hattie Hughes and Richard Stone, both retired, keep very busy with church activities. She was a delegate to the convention to elect a new Episcopal bishop for NJ. Their daughter was ordained as a Methodist minister. The Stones plan a fall trip to Italy. Liz Helm Lawson has her two middle sons near her in Pittsburgh, but the oldest and youngest live in CA. Liz is active in sr. citizen groups and volunteers at the hospital. Page Croyder Diehl visited Joan Oram in England and had a wonderful trip. Page is trying to teach as much as she can to boost her retirement. She became a grandmother for the first time. Vicky Toof Johnson retired after 39 years of teaching French and English. Her husband, Jerry, also retired and they took a monthlong trip from AZ up to WA State. Son Drew is in 3rd year of law school.

Lady Joan Oram and Sir Bob Reid have no plans for retirement. They visited Page in El Paso and see "Kobo" Chobot and Thom Garner every other year. Anne Sheffield and Bradley Hale also visit. Joan and Bob go to Australia often to see their 2 sons. The Reids are restoring the London home of Benjamin Franklin to its 1730s state and hope to make it an exciting museum. Joan would like our help with awareness, publicity, and funds. Contact her by e-mail at:

breid2424@aol.com or get her address from SBC or me. Shirley Poulson Broyles and Norris went to Italy and to Ireland for golf. They did a lot of East coast travel following the UVA lacrosse team on which 2 of their grandsons played. They dropped in to my gallery in Charleston and also visited Kirk Tucker ('53) and Jack Clarkson in Norfolk. Jo Nelson Booze enjoys her retirement from teaching but keeps busy with her church's Habitat for Humanity. She traveled to Newfoundland and Labrador and will go to Scotland with her daughter. She has 4 rascally grandsons. Cynthia Sinclair and Bill Rutherford have their first grandchild and plan to see her a lot since Kansas City is not too far from Wichita. Bill is making cast bronze garden bells and marketing them nationally. Cindy is Assistant Director of the Institute for Teacher Education at Newman University. Peggy Ewart Riter writes that Sally Bumbaugh brought dinner to the condo they were staying in at Ocean City to celebrate the Riter's 31st anniversary and also Sally's birthday. Patty McClay Boggs ('55) came to the baptism of their 7th grandchild. Sally also visited Joan Potter and Henry Bickell in FL. The Bickells are selling their boat, but will have a fall river trip on the Delta Queen with her sister. Joan ran into "Peaches" Davis Roane in Louisville. Kobo and Thom rode the Delta Queen this summer also. Like others, they love retirement. Betty Gene Orr and E.W. Atkinson have 4 teenage grandchildren all nearby in Memphis. They spend a lot of time on their farm in Como, MS. Dilly Johnson and Paul Jones have 4 new grandchildren—triplet boys born to Sanford and a girl to Louise who also has 2 boys. The Joneses see a lot of Derrill Maybank ('55) and Ben Hagood for golfing. Dilly writes that Ruthie Frye Deaton's daughter was married in May and Ann Collins Teachout's daughter and family returned from Japan. Faith Rahmer Croker's son married a Macon girl, but Dilly was away. Barbara Chase Webber got 3 instant granddaughters when son, Chris, married and a grandson last fall making 9 altogether. She's still very active with the horse racing and golf—both frustrating. Ann May and Harold Via own a steeplechase horse. They will spend 2 fall weeks with their grandson, 13, (one of 6 grandchildren) in New England touring in a 1912 Pierce Arrow. Meri Hodges Major and Faith Rahmer Croker went on SBC cruises in Scandinavia (Meri), and Russia (Faith), and had a wonderful time. Faith also went to Egypt and Israel. Meri's further travels took her to Fiji, New Zealand, and Australia. Meri had her left thumb "done" (the right was done years ago) and was in a cast more than 6 weeks. The recovery after an arthritic rebuilding was hard, especially since she's left handed. Barbara Tompkins Ames spent a week in the Cotswolds. Anne Sheffield and Bradley Hale took a cruise with the National Trust (Bradley is a trustee) to the Celtic Lands and ran into Barbara Ballard and Mitchell Wommack during a lifeboat drill. Barbara's daughter is in Richmond so she sees Meri often. The Hales also were in France with an SBC Jr. Year in France group. Then, in Pittsburgh, also on Trust business, they ran into Pinky Walsh and Frank Cahouet, who we're hoping will make his first ever trip to SBC for reunion. Ellie Vorys and George Matchneer spent 2 mos. in their Canadian cabin and 2 mos. in the British Isles while their kids' family took over the house to keep an eye on the house they were building across the ravine. Betty Walker Dykes is now Mrs. Lars Steib (congratulations to you both!) and between them they have 7 grandsons. They've traveled to India, France, Italy, and Mexico. They have a house in Houston and a condo at St. Simons. Liz Carper and Roy Hoffman are returning to Birmingham after 7 marvelous years on an island in the Gulf. Their oldest grandson is at UVA. Mary Ann Robb and Rome Freer travel all over the US and spend a lot of time at their house in Naples, FL. They occasionally see Maggie Mohlman and Bud Deglar who live about a mile away. Ann Thomas and Tom Donohue raved about their trip to Africa with this terrific couple. I wrote back that it was a coincidence because we'd done the same thing. The 4 of us had a fabulous trip to Botswana and Zimbabwe. The Donohues plan a spring Caribbean sailing cruise with Karen Looker and Tim Hyde. Sally Gammon Plummer spent 3 weeks in England. She's doing an Elderhostel on Lewis and Clark in MT—loves her retirement.

I plan to keep on "arting" while animal art in decorating is still hot. My business was up 40% last year and it's a great way to get back to Africa for more research. Please stop by The Pink House Gallery when in Charleston—maybe I'll be there too! Plan your trip to the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains in May. Let's dazzle them with our turnout!

President: Carol McMurtry Fowler
Secretary: Diane Duffield Wood
Fund Agent: Cynthia Wilson Ottaway, Anne Wilson Rowe

Thank you for all your cards. Sorry for any "cuts" but our space is limited. I have concluded that most of us are retired, traveling grandmothers and loving every moment of it.

Dagmar Halmagyi Yon has retired and plans to watch a family of wild foxes grow up as she tackles 15 years worth of spring cleaning. Betty Murden Michelson, in Va. Beach, is enjoying bridge and her garden club since retirement. She plans to visit her son David in OR. Dee Robin, still talking about how wonderful reunion was, has been awarded a Rockefeller Fellowship in Gender Studies at the Newberry Library in Chicago. Virginia Marks Paget continues as director of a learning masters program at Antioch Univ. She visited Page Phelps Coulter in NY. Page has published a book of poetry. Joy Peeples Massie enjoys her 10 grandchildren and hopes to attend Jane Pinkney Hanahan's daughter's wedding. Jane's news is of her daughter Anne's marriage to Dale Blessing, Jr. While Anne is teaching at Charleston Day School, Dale is in medical school. Anne Gwinn Fox and Jay enjoy visits to their 4 children and 3 grandchildren who are scattered about the U.S. and Canada. Ann Fraser Hudson returned from Paris and San Sebastian. She had a fabulous trip especially seeing the Frank Gehry Museum. Sydney Graham Brady and Bill dropped by SBC and saw Nancy Godwin Baldwin. They were very impressed with the Heuer Science Building. Mary Anne Vandevoort Large and Bob following a course in Buddhism, traveled to S.E. Asia. They reside in a retirement community where they are very active. Saynor Johnson Ponder met up with Marguerite McDaniel Wood during the Macon Cherry Blossom Festival. Saynor and Buddy traveled with "Flo" Barclay Winston and Charlie to Santa Fe. Nannette McBurney Crowds and Bill have settled in Madison VA. Sandy and I had a wonderful visit with Nannette when she was here in Chicago planning her daughter Carol's wedding. In Oct. the Crowdses will join Sandra Stingily Simpson, Margie Scott Johnson and Earl and Lee Haskell Mack and Charlie on a SBC Greek Island cruise. Margie Scott Johnson has a new grandson in Boulder. Lee Haskell Mack is a new grandmother also. She also is a newlywed and can be seen either on the curling circuit or sailing the New England waters thanks to hubby Charlie's influence. Susan Ragland Abrahamson and family rented a house in France in July. If I counted right there were to be 1B total. Susan also reports that Kay Tilghman Lowe and Jim are fine. Marguerite McDaniel Wood and Enid

Slack are a picture of health after two weeks at Rancho La Puerto Spa. Jane Campbell Englert enjoys retirement after 30 years of teaching. She is traveling and visiting all 5 grandchildren. Margie Whitson Aude and Fritz have 6 children and 9 grandchildren all extremely successful and busy. They live from Boston to VA and west to IL. Barbara Falge Openshaw reports her 10th grandchild. Since reunion she has traveled to AK and Greece. I had a great time with "Babs" at our 45th school reunion in D.C. in April. Day Gibson Kerr, like "Babs", welcomed her 10th grandchild. Her son Edward appeared in a made for TV movie called "Legalese" featuring such stars as James Garner and Kathleen Turner. Dot Duncan Hodges and Roberta Malone Henderson report together that they are fine. They had a great visit. "Chips" Chao Pai and David caught up with Cynthia Wilson Ottaway and John at the Ottaways lovely home in MI during a golfing vacation. "Chips" is serving on a Committee for Diversity at SBC so she sees Nancy Godwin Baldwin who is recovering nicely from hip surgery. Susan Neblett Stephens and Bob Lee had a tour of English gardens conducted by our own Ninie Lang and plan a 12/98 cruise. Also on the English garden tour were Anne Wilson Rowe and Joe. Anne writes that Joe, instead of retiring, has taken on the full job of running the local paper. She enjoyed seeing "Babs" Openshaw's beautiful garden in Annapolis while at her son and daughter-in-law's graduation from St. Johns. Lisa Morton Chute and John are working hard to clear an overgrown garden at their home in Tappahannock, VA. Ninie Lang enjoyed the English garden tour but from there she traveled on to Singapore, Bali and Thailand. She is glad to be home and looking forward to her spring term sabbatical. Carolyn Swift Fleming completed 20 years with the Visiting Nurse Assoc. of Omaha. She is planning an B/98 wedding and looking forward to the return of her daughter and family from France. Zan Engh Moore is President of Reconciliation Outreach which houses and trains homeless men, women and children. Jackie Ambler Cusick was so sorry to miss our 40th but due to Ralph having both hips replaced 10 weeks apart and a yearlong renovation of their home it was impossible. Faye Rathgeber Willis still owns and operates a travel company. Faye was honored by her town of Richardson, TX with a tree in recognition of her many volunteer hours. Jane Fitzgerald Treherne-Thomas enjoys the summer life in Sewickley, PA. She plans trips to VA, an autumn opera, theatre trip to NY and a possible winter trip to England. I too joined the retired ranks as of June when the little independent book store I had worked in for 16 years closed its doors. Very sad but now Sandy and I can hopefully travel to see more of our 3 children, 9 grandchildren and friends. So loved hearing from so many of you.

President: Barbara Bowen Moore
Secretary: Barbara Beam Denison
Fund Agent: Margot A. McKee, Page Tucker (Tucky) McFall Ziebold

Barba Bowen Moore will go with Becky Towill McNair and other Augusta, GA gals to Provence for their 60ths. She and Clay keep busy in Atlanta painting and drawing in their twin studios. Mary Anne Claiborne Johnston left her position as Director of the Office of Education at Yale School of Medicine and returned to CO where she has a faculty position at U of CO Health Sciences Center. Husband, Dick, is medical director of the March of Dimes and their 3 children are also in health-related fields. Lura Coleman Wampler continues to teach chemistry at the Shipley School and run her horse boarding business while she and her husband keep up with their 1730 farmhouse. From Annapolis, Joyce Cooper Toomey writes that she and Charley spent the winter on their boat in Vero Beach, FL and liked it so much that they now have a condo there. Their 3 daughters (all SBC grads) and son are busy raising a crop of SBC candidates—5 granddaughters! Nancy Corson Gibbes and Joe had a delightful trip to France and are enjoying a grandson, Corson. Ellie Crosby Erdman writes from Rockland, ME, now their home as David is fully retired. Ellie's winter was busy feeding her music addiction in NYC, DC (where we joined up) and Sarasota and summer was filled with sailing, family reunion, Princeton reunion (where she saw Pattie Powell Pusey and Jane Headstream Yerkes) and travel. Lee Cullum is a columnist for the Dallas Morning News, a commentator on the News Hour with Jim Lehrer and serves on the boards of the Council on Foreign Relations and the Pacific Council on International Policy. In the fall of '97 she visited SBC, speaking to and visiting with journalism students. She was joined by Maline Gilbert McCalla and together they found their old room in Grammer! Maline also joined Maydelle Foster Fason and her husband for 2 weeks in Paris where they saw the Fason's daughter dance with the Merce Cunningham Dance Co. at the Paris Opera House. Maydelle's career counseling business is thriving as downtown Austin grows. Charlyne Grimes Coleman's husband passed away last spring and she is now starting a new career as a freelance estate administration paralegal in Hendersonville, NC. Jane Haldeman Hope visited her daughter in Seattle, celebrated her 60th with 3 elem. school buddies on Bald Head Is., NC and celebrates her son's marriage in Oct. Teddy Hill Washer has a new grandchild, bringing the total to 5, She and Liz Few Penfield are leading two safari trips to Africa in Aug./Sept.—they will plan a trip for our class in the millennium year if there is interest, so let them know at 1-800-789-9286 or <tsafari@roi.net>. They have rented a house in Provence for next spring and will visit with Elsie Burch Donald in the Dordogne Valley. In CO, they had a great visit from Grace Suttle who has a new house in Richmond where her medical practice is located. Shirley Hayman Sudduth and John are retired and enjoy golf, gardening and volunteer work in Madera, CA when not traveling in their 36 foot RV to visit grandchildren in OR and WA or just sightsee. They traveled to Australia/New Zealand and have plans for MT and Estes Park.

Janet Holmes Rothard is busy with work and dog shows in Bat Cave, NC. Her son's August wedding in FL gave her a rest from raising her first litter of Bulldog puppies. Donna Kerkham Grosvenor teaches yoga in the Hospital Rehab program, the cancer and pain clinic and for seniors in Santa Fe. She also leads yoga retreats to sacred sites. After 3 years of study, Kathy Knox Ennis was ordained to the diaconate of the Episcopal Church, diocese of Southwest Florida, on 6/13 in St. Petersburg with her entire family in attendance. She and Dick will celebrate with a cruise to Greece, Turkey and the Holy Land. Annie Laurie Martin writes from Richmond of the pleasures of visits to France and the beauty of its language... enjoyments which spring from her SBC jr. year in France. Adrienne Massie Hill is still at the US Bank in Seattle while Mal, now retired, reads for the blind on radio and sings with the Seattle Symphony Chorale. A and Mal see Jane Headstream Yerkes and Leonard for "jolly dinners and golf". Elizabeth Meade Howard works on women's health videos and magazine articles while pursuing photography. On a recent visit to Martha's Vineyard, Elizabeth ran into Dinny Muldaur Doges and they had a happy reunion lunch. Katie Mendelson McDonald summered in Palm Beach teaching water aerobics and working on committees with the Rose Society and the Beach and Sailfish Clubs. Husband, Jack, continues to be a head-hunter and paraglider in the States, Hong Kong and China. Since her father's death, Jean Morris Stevenson has spent lots of time on the ranch in TX. She and Don traveled to the Far East, Bermuda, Italy inc. Tuscany and summered at their home in the mountains of NC. Barbara Murphy Hale is soon to retire after 27 years at the YWCA of Annapolis and Anne Arundel County. She enjoys sailing with Phil and visits with children (and one grandchild) in El Paso, Chicago and St. Petersburg. Ginger Newman Blanchard and Bob toured the northern US last summer and did Australia/New Zealand in the winter. Then Ginger and her father took a very special trip together to Germany. In Green Village, NJ, she and Bob work at maintaining their farmhouse and their golf and tennis games. Robin Ould Rentsch and Sam lived for 5 weeks in a tent on the Red Sea 2 years ago while working with the Institute of Nautical Archeology and went to India for a monthlong study trip last fall. Robin also works on a wildlife sanctuary near Great Falls, VA. In June, Charity Paul had a visit with Norris Smith and Patricia Russell Howard in Sag Harbor where she lives from May to Oct. Charity is taking a course on the Bloomsbury Circle, practicing psychotherapy, biking, painting and "messing around with boats". In Richmond Anita Perrin Grimes finished another year teaching 6th grade reading and English and will travel to France, Belgium and Holland. She sees Jane Ellis Covington, Carolyn King Ratcliffe and Grace Suttle "occasionally, but not often enough." George and I see Patti Powell Pusey and Bill occasionally but not often enough too—they are up to a 3 boy 2 girl grandchild count now. They plan a summer trip to France and a fall motor trip to SC with Carolyn King Ratcliffe and Clyde. Anne Rienecke Clarke became a grandmother, took a riverboat trip down the Amazon and went to Machu Pichu and visited Palm Springs with Gwen Speel Kaplan Patricia Russell Howard finds turning 60 exhilarating and writes happily—as did Charity Paul—of their June reunion with Norris Smith in Sag Harbor. Linda Sims Grady has taught pre-first at Westminster School in Atlanta for 25 years. She has 4 grandchildren with one on the way and relaxes at a mountain get-away in SC. Ann Smith Bretscher is retiring after 23 years of teaching at U of GA and recently represented SBC at the inauguration of U. GA's new President. Jane Tatman Walker enjoys frequent travels, time with grandchildren and SBC Alumnae activities, among them the organization of a luncheon for Pres. Muhlenfeld in Sarasota. Becky Towill McNair had a busy year with 2 new granddaughters, 2 christenings, one wedding and new home construction. Sally Underhill Vialt reports year's highlights: meetings in DC and SC concerning improvement of education opportunities, observing a church burning trial, Bert's retirement from Winthrop U., Becky Towill McNair and Bill's daughter's wedding and a visit with Ginger Newman Blanchard and Bob. Dotty Westby Farquhar and Jerry have retired from flying regularly but continue to fly folks from Kaiser College around to their campuses within FL.

I acted with children's theater this year and volunteer for the Jane Goodall Institute while maintaining my framing business—George still actively lobbies on the Hill—we are not considering retirement in any form at this time! See you all at SBC in 2000—Love Beam.

We had a splendid 35th reunion with about 20 in attendance. For those unable to come, it would be impossible to recreate for you the ambience. Many of us lost our voices from laughing and talking non-stop. I recall conversations with Nancy McDowell and Sue Cansler Jones about the watershed changes in American society that were emerging as we graduated. Someone should study us, we decided, and maybe we'll do it ourselves. Nancy continues her clinical social work private practice in Mansfield Ctr., CT. Ann Leavell Reynolds and I talked of our passion for fly fishing and pledged to fish the high mountain lakes in WY together. Julie Arnold Morey and Betsy Parker McColl and I shared a suite, missing Penny Pamplin who has a new job at the public library in Louisville. She was to go on a cruise to AK with her mother later in the summer. Julie has uncountable step-grandchildren. Betsy's daughter Eliza is a sr. at UNC. We enjoyed art works displayed by Anne Carter Brothers (she now has 2 granddaughters) and Cherie Fitzgerald Burcharth. We profited from insightful comments about the mission and direction of the college from Betty Stanley Cates, who represents the Alumnae Board on the SBC Board of Directors.

Our notes now appear in the winter Alumnae News, so from now on I will contact you for news in the summer instead of the fall. For this entry I'm relying mostly on the reunion scrapbook. Nancy Caldwell Briggs attended reunion with her husband, Bob. They now enjoy retirement in Vero Beach, where their son Edson practices law. Victoria Anderson Breen will move to the FL panhandle, expanding her retailing and interior design business. Mary Groetzinger Heard retired as a school librarian and third-grade teacher. She volunteers in the Boston schools, and works in a children's book shop. Punch Harris Wray is a freelance writer and a reader for literary agents, living in Chevy Chase. Cynthia Hooten Magowan has 3 grown sons and 2 granddaughters, all living near her Hillsborough, CA home. Cynthia still rides competitively, and has taken up golf to spend more time with husband, Merrill. Gini Joachim Wade is an interior designer in Palo Alto, where her husband is lab director at Hewlett Packard. Son Trevor is on a Fullbright in India. Judy Johnson Varn sent a picture of son Robert's wedding in Jamaica 8/97. Daughter Lily, also married, works at the High Museum in Atlanta. That's where Sarah Hitch Hill will open a special exhibition of Cherokee handcrafts 10/99.

Ellis Beasley Long is an associate professor of Spanish at Thomas Nelson Community College in Hampton, VA. We both left SBC for the Peace Corps 35 years ago, and finally had a chance to compare notes. Laura Lee Brown and husband Steve are traveling lots and managing a growing bison herd near Louisville, with the help of Steve's son. Daughter Laura Lee was married last summer. Pat Calkins Wilder continues to pursue her photography career, and was expecting a grandchild in Sept. Ginger Cates Mitchell works 2-3 days a week at a shelter for homeless women. Ginger and Ed had their first grandchild in June. Relaxing, in a relative sense, after completing her Ph.D. in human resource development, Lyn Clark Pegg now devotes full attention to her private clinical practice and teaching psychology at the U. of MN. McNair Currie Maxwell continues teaching Latin in a H.S. in Rancho Palos Verdes, CA, and gets down to Mexico to see granddaughter Ashley. Marion Dean Hall is an assistant in an ophthalmic clinic in Gloucester, VA. Her son William, 27, is an engineer at Lockheed Martin in Owego, NY. Cathy Detmar Nicholls is still master of foxhounds in Devon, England. Her daughter Heather, 29, works in San Francisco as a book-binder and paper conservator. Nerissa vom Baur Roehrs still lives in Leipzig, composing music and undoubtedly a frequent flyer to England where daughter Marina attends school. Harriet Reese Jensen and her husband retired from farming near Copenhagen, and play tennis, golf and bridge. Daughter Marianne received her MA from the U. of Copenhagen and teaches nearby. Son John manages a large estate and runs his own farm. Youngest son Christian has presented them with a granddaughter. Renee Regen Sage retired from special education and remains in Burnside, Australia. She studies "tonal realism" and pursues new challenges in art and music. She and Ed have 2 grandchildren. Catherine Dillingham Caverly has remarried. She and her husband, John, farm in Ookala, HI. She has 5 children and one grandchild. Karen Gill Meyer continues her financial consulting and financial planning career in Phoenix. Meg Mackenzie Nowacki teaches math at the New Haven Hebrew Day School and other institutions in Orange CT. Her son Christopher finished a degree in environmental studies from So. VT U. and daughter Katrina works for the Yale School of Medicine. There is some talk of retirement. Sue Jones Cansler put a question about retirement on our reunion questionnaire. She doesn't appear to be contemplating it herself, rounding out 14 years with a computer software firm. Nancy Dixon Brown says this may be her last year teaching special ed in Atlanta. She has an 8th grader and a college junior. Lee Kucewicz Parham sold her toy shop after 20 years She and John have 2 sons and one grandson. Betty McDonald McCutcheon lives in Ellijay, GA, where her husband Joseph publishes an economic and political newsletter. Lauren is at UNC, while daughter Elizabeth works for Bell South, and son Joseph is exec. director of the GA Public Policy Foundation. Cynthia Livingstone Gibert is assistant chief, infectious diseases, at the VA hospital in DC. Son Chris is also a physician, and daughter Jennifer completed an MBA at Vanderbilt. Keitt Matheson Wood was expecting a grandchild, the child of son Gordon and Carrie, who live in Ks. Cy. Keitt is president of the Powderly, TX, public library advisory board. Daughter Helen is sales manager for a restaurant group in Atlanta. Chenault McClure Conway does lay pastoral work in Louisville, and works closely with the Episcopal Diocese of KY. Her daughter Ceci is an international marketer in Singapore, while son Stewart is a hydroponic gardener in Wash. Stevie Fontaine Keown lives in Richmond where her husband is a partner in a radio station. Son Clarke, 28, is a producer for a radio station in Knoxville. Her daughter Jennifer is married, living in Hong Kong and working as a sales associate for CNN. Julia Fort Lowe is gardening, volunteering in Cookeville, TN, and traveling with husband Bob. Son Bob III finished medical school at Vanderbilt and son Seth is at the U. of Memphis. Ann Funkhouser Kurz and husband Bill were at reunion full of tales of recent travels to embroidery trade shows, workshops taught by Ann, and to see her son in Zurich, his daughter in Santa Cruz, and her son in DC. Prue Gay Stuhr and Ed are in "temporary retirement" from dog obedience training, but still love their Dalmatians. Prue has 3 step-children and one step-grandchild. She still teaches social studies in Lexington, MA. Frances Graham MacLwinen is widowed and living in Greenville, SC. She has 4 grandchildren. Jean MacRae Bailey is a big Crimson Tide fan, with 4 graduates of the U. of Ala. She coordinates graduate medical Ed at the U. of So. Ala. Jean Meyer Aloe is an exec. asst. for a property mgmt. co. Jennifer, 23, is a doct. student in clinical psych. at Northwestern, Betsy is a jr. prevet student at UPenn. Jean has had more poetry published. Margaret Millender Holmes is a software developer in Painted Post, NY. One son is an AF pilot, and the other does "computer stuff." She and Tom have one granddaughter. Tish Skinner Dace is now married to a woman, and was in final throes of depositions in her gender discrimination lawsuit against the U. of Mass, where she is a professor of English. The AAUW has adopted her case. Her 2 sons have followed her creative footsteps, one as a filmmaker and one as a playwright. Tish continues to publish articles and reviews. Leslie Smith Elger is a full-time pet sitter in Cedarburg, WI, where she also horse-back rides, and plans her many travels.

She has 3 daughters, one in marketing, one in art education, and one a computer specialist. Allie Stemmons Simon did a great job in getting our reunion gift together—$63,431 with 50% participation. She is a custom travel planner for clients all over the country, and reports that husband Heinz is "busy and happy, children are gainfully employed and out of the nest, and a cat and dog are the finest of companions." Marta Sweet Colangelo is education director of Young Audiences of Houston. Her youngest son is at the Art Institute in Houston. Daughter Catherine and son Matthew are both married and living in Houston. Susan Terjen Bernard and Betsy Flanders Spencer joined us for reunion only for Friday night, both looking great. Susan is the executive director of an art center in Norfolk and has 3 grandchildren. Olive Wilson Robinson is a horticultural consultant in Atlanta. She and Roby have 3 daughters and 2 grandchildren. Lisa Wood Hancock and her mother Elizabeth Bond Wood '34 were at reunion. Lisa is the business manager of the Lynchburg Fine Arts Center. Both her children are married and living in the DC area. Daughter Elizabeth was married at SBC in 1996, and was expecting a baby in Oct. Jane Yardley Amos and husband John moved to Santa Fe, but return to WVA for spring and fall. Daughter Emily was married in July. Barbara Yocum Miller lives close to all 3 grown children and one grandchild in Annandale, VA. Youngest son Stephen is a soph. at James Madison U. Barbara is a part-time preschool teacher, and husband Jack retired from government job. Sallie Yon Williams continues to write and edit cookbooks. Son Whitredge is an investment banker in NY, and Courtney manages Nickelodeon Int'l in NY.

E-mail Rosie at LEP-ARUR@mail.firn.edu. Edna Ann Osmani Loftus was promoted to full professor and is also Director of Academic Advising at St. Andrews, Laurinburg, NC. Bill continues in administration at St. Andrews and son Willie, 8th grade, loves soccer. Ellen Apperson Brown writes from Asheville, NC that for the past 2 years she's been dealing with divorce, career changes and moves, but things are better now. She's launching a business called Pelican Projects to provide good cheer to shut-ins and long-term care facility residents, since Henderson County seems to be retirement capital of the US! From Virginia Beach, Susan Snodgrass Wynne reports that her mother, Eleanor Potts Snodgrass, celebrated her 50th reunion at SBC. Susan's son John graduated from Princeton, and will do investment banking in NY with BT Alex Brown. John's lacrosse team won its third National Championship, and the family follows the team to the games. Her son Brad will be a jr., with sports closer to home. This summer, the family will go to Bermuda for a graduation celebration, and will also spend a week in WY at a dude ranch. From Culpepper, VA, Charla Leonard Reynolds's older son Keith is starting at the Univ. of Richmond. Her other son William begins 10th grade at Woodberry Forest. Trish Neale Van Clief reports from Lexington, KY that her dear mother Claudia Neale, died 6/3 after a lifetime of battling cancer. Trish spent the last 4 months with her and her dad and flew home on weekends to be with DG. Trish was there when her mother died at home. She says her mother loved SBC and all her friends, and that she will always be grateful for her mother's example and her faith that when God called her mother, she was ready.

From NY, BJ Martin writes that she had a wonderful visit with Jane Potts and that Jane "looks terrific." BJ became engaged to a terrific man 12/97. Also in NY is Nancy Ewan Miller. An announcement of her wedding to Douglas Lloyd Miller appeared in the 7/98 Town and Country magazine. In Birmingham, AL, Margaret Lyle Jones bought a house after house-sitting for months. She went to an SBC dinner at Margaret Hayes Brunstad's house in June. Her son Alex studied for the summer in Oxford, England, son Andrew was there with her, and youngest son Michael also visited. Her nursing job in a dialysis unit is going well, and she'll begin grad school in nursing soon. Marion Walker's law practice in the areas of discrimination, personal injury and commercial litigation is going well. She has started the Birmingham Chapter of the Inns of Court. Having golfed in the summer heat, she's decided she needs to take out her 14 foot Capri more often. And, typically Marion, she dressed up as Mae West for a cystic fibrosis fund-raiser—reminds me of our reunion! In MI, Emily McNally Brown celebrated her 25th anniversary with most of their families. Son Peter (23), after having married 8/97, is building a house on a nearby lake. Son Chris (17) has recovered after his terrible car crash on his 17th birthday and graduated in June from h.s., a real miracle! She started her new job teaching at a private academy and continues to teach at night for a community college. Husband Jim still enjoys his career. Betty Works Fuller is still rector of the Episcopal Church of the Advent in Alice, TX, and was the first woman rector elected in her diocese. Her husband continues as assistant rector at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Corpus Christi. Betty's daughter Mary is a jr. at Southwestern Univ. in Georgetown, TX, majoring in art history, and son Will is in 4th grade. From Midland, TX, Rhonda Griffith Durham reports she has been Director of Admissions at Trinity School since reunion. She stepped into a sudden vacancy to help out after having been a trustee for 15 years. She's still reeling from our classmates' generosity in our 25th reunion gift. Lynn Waterman Blum writes from Denver, CO that she has moved. Jean Andrews writes from Sacramento, CA that her husband Alan is an anesthesiologist and her son, 6, is a shark, snake and dinosaur specialist. Jean teaches French freelance to elem. schoolchildren and dreams of writing or teaching college seminars again. Here in Houston, Nathalie (Bobo) Ryan Hoyt has all 4 kids in h.s. or college. She says there is always a "crisis," and it always involves money! Bobo teaches French and English literature to 7th grade Gifted/Talented kids. She loves the school, which is 97% Hispanic, and the work. According to Bobo, Mont stays happy playing lawyer. Also in Houston, Carol Cody Herder's family is busy with sports. Husband Charlie coaches basketball teams year round for their kids Sarah (15) and Charles (11). Carol volunteers at her children's school and swims to keep in shape. They plan to spend much of their summer in CO. I'm still in Houston also after getting my Ph.D. in policy analysis and law. I'm thinking of doing compliance/business practices work full time. I still teach regulatory policy, finance and accounting at the masters level at Houston Baptist Univ. Stan is still a psychologist in private practice, and also works for the school district and teaches biopsychology at Houston Baptist. My oldest son Charlie (22) graduated from college and was married in June. Charlie is a physical therapy technician planning grad school in that field. My youngest son Will graduated from h.s. and will go to Vanderbilt in the fall. Their dad (whom some of you may remember) is very ill with cancer so I'm working to be supportive Mom with the boys. It's a privilege to be your class secretary and record your news and history.

SWEET BRIAR COLLEGE

1997-1998

HONOR ROLL OF DONORS

Foreword

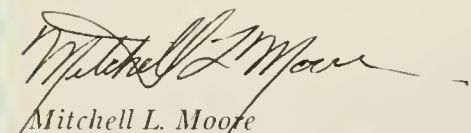

I am pleased to report our fiscal year-end results. The 1997-98 total cash flow for the Development Program stands at $8,008,121.

We are extremely grateful for the generosity of our alumnae, parents, and friends to the unrestricted Annual Fund. Annual Fund receipts topped $1.8 million for the first time ($1,802,498), an increase of $125,000 over last year. An unusually strong 50th Reunion Gift effort (Congratulations and thank you again, Class of 1948!) set a record with the largest-ever Reunion gift to the College.

Analyzing the year's success, we credit:

- Strong unrestricted giving. In addition to the Annual Fund, Sweet Briar received an unrestricted gift of $108,000 from the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges.
- Bequests and life-income gifts totaling $1,243,723.
- Endowment gifts of $548,360 received from pledges to the Audrey Teal Betts Challenge for the Riding Program.

Ongoing thanks to each one of you who, through your loyalty, dedication, and enthusiastic support, has made possible this good news. Our success continues to come from the commitment of individual donors. You have heightened our sense of excitement as we look toward Sweet Briar's Centennial.

Mitchell L. Moore
 Vice President for Development and College Relations

In 1997-98, Reunion classes, under the direction of Lochrane Coleman Smith '76, National Reunion Gifts Chair, raised $653,699—an all-time high. The Class of 1948 raised $287,733, the largest single Reunion gift ever, winning the Nancy Dowd Burton Award for the largest gift in a Reunion year. The Class of 1948, with 95% participation, also won the Participation Award for Classes Celebrating the 25th-50th Reunion. The Class of 1978, with 40% participation, won the Participation Award for Classes Celebrating the 5th-20th Reunion.

Also, 1997-98 was the second year of our new Reunion Long-Term Pledge Program in which we encourage alumnae to make generous gifts not only in the Reunion year, but also the years following. This year, the Class of 1963 won the Reunion Long-Term Pledge Award for raising the highest RLTP total, $71,000, for the four years following Reunion.

The purpose of the Reunion Giving Program is to increase unrestricted gifts to the Annual Fund; however, we recognize and thank all classes for their total gifts to all funds.

THE AUDREY TEAL BETTS CHALLENGE FOR THE RIDING PROGRAM

The College is exceedingly grateful to those listed below for making the Riding Program a priority in their giving for 1998. Each gift was matched dollar for dollar by a special gift made possible by the estate of Audrey Teal Betts, Class of 1945. Over $2 million dollars has been added to various riding endowments over the past year. Thank you for your generous support.

The 1998 Senior Class "planted a seed" with their senior class gift, pledging $11,345 to be divided equally between the unrestricted Alumnae Fund and a special fund restricted to a project to be identified in the College's Master Plan.

The class created the Class of 1998 Master Plan Fund as a way of showing commitment to the future growth of Sweet Briar. At the Fifth Reunion, the class will determine how the money will be spent.

A special thanks to Virginia Blair '98 and Charlotte Rognmoe '98 for leading this effort. The class achieved 70 percent participation.

Sweet Briar College's fiscal year is July 1 to June 30. The 1997-1998 Honor Roll of Donors reflects the College's abiding gratitude for gifts sent by members of the Sweet Briar family between July 1, 1997, and June 30, 1998. Warmest thanks to each donor from all of us at the College.

This report has been prepared by the Division of Development and Public Relations. We have taken great care to ensure that complete and accurate listings appear. However, due to the large number of donors, to whom we are most grateful, a mistake may have gone unnoticed. Should you find an error or omission, please bring it to our attention. Please note that an individual's name may appear on several lists, and also that some donors have requested that their gifts be anonymous.

In the Sweet Briar Tradition

KATHLEEN GARCIA PEGUES '71: COMPLETING THE CONNECTION

“Indiana Fletcher Williams was a visionary,” says Kathy Garcia Pegues. “Her wishes for the College were not specific. She was willing to let the future play out, trusting the women here and now to continue her legacy.”

“I have no idea what the future holds for Sweet Briar. But, unlike Miss Indy, I can look back and see what the College has done for me, for my students, and for my daughter. I have every reason to trust the traditions of this institution. Including Sweet Briar in my will was not a huge leap of faith, it was an informed vote of confidence.”

Kathy was aware of Sweet Briar long before she ever set foot on campus. Her mother was secretary to Margaret Banister '16. Miss Banister, who established Sweet Briar's office of public relations in 1932, was the niece of the College's third president, Meta Glass.

“When my father went to medical school, my mother went to work in the Pentagon, in the public relations office for the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Her boss was Margaret Banister. During primary-school holidays, I would go to this enormous office and Miss Banister would let me play on the typewriter.

I can remember her saying to my mother: ‘Now, Joy, you know you must bring Kathleen to Sweet Briar.’

“I have always had fond memories of Miss Banister as a grandmotherly figure. Her aunt, Miss Glass, was Lincolnesque: tall, imposing, and very charming. Miss Glass had two wonderful scotty dogs at her home in Charlottesville. As a little girl, I was crazy about those dogs and dreamed of owning one myself. But, as delightful as these childhood impressions were, they left me with a very funny picture of what Sweet Briar might be like. When I was 16, I was not particularly interested in visiting the College.”

Kathy did the grand college tour, looking at schools in both the Northeast and Midwest. When she finally acquiesced to Miss Banister's nudging, she encountered a much different place than she expected. “The friendliness of Sweet Briar was apparent. And I discovered that here

I could continue to do all the things I enjoyed. I could play hockey, participate in theatre, and run for student government. I didn't have to choose. I could do it all.

“The question I asked myself at that point is the same question I ask my students today: Why are you going to college? If you're going to college to fully develop your potential and resources, you need to be in a place that treats you as an individual. It's an approach that, while not unique to Sweet Briar, is still rare among academic institutions.

“I have seen some of my best and brightest students fall through the cracks at large universities. On the other hand, the eleven students I encouraged to attend Sweet Briar have all managed to distinguish themselves. They've won awards, received grants to do research, gone abroad, played sports, had significant internships, and appeared in the College's publications and web pages. Even more important, they've all become incredibly confident young women.”

Kathy describes her own daughter, Emily Stevens Pegues '00, as being in the midst of a happy Sweet Briar dilemma. “There are so many courses she wants to take; it's difficult to narrow the list every semester. Many of her courses are interconnected. Her campus job in the slide library coincides with her art history major. She's excited about going to Spain. She's made friends with students, staff members, and professors. People know who she is. And she sees herself as part of a community, a continuum.

“Emily and all the students here are part of a network that is meaningful and alive. Now that the College is in my will, I feel a closer connection not only to the community, but to the vision that keeps it together. I had no idea it would be such an emotional experience. I'm no longer just benefiting from Miss Indy's legacy, I'm part of it.”

Alumnae Association President Kathleen Garcia Pegues '71 has taught language arts in grades 6-12 for 20 years. Her husband, John Keitt Pegues IV, is the assistant principal and athletic director for Culpeper County High School in Virginia. Their daughter, Emily, is currently an SBC junior. “As public school educators we can't be too extravagant,” says Kathy. “We need assurance that our gift will make a difference. Between my and Emily's experience, John has seen the power of this community.”

For further information about making a planned gift to Sweet Briar College, please contact Mitchell L. Moore, Vice President for Development/College Relations, Box G, Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Virginia 24595, (804) 381-6161.
